

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION NAMES CANDIDATES FOR GOVERNOR

Perkins, Metcalf and Pardee Endorsed--Points in Platform--Nominations Made for the Offices-- Convention is a Most Enthusiastic One-- Rousing Reception for Dr. Pardee.

The Republicans of Alameda County met in convention this morning at Germania Hall to nominate a County ticket.

The hall was patriotically decorated for the occasion.

The platform from which the nominating speeches were made was picturesquely decorated with American flags. The rear of the platform had a background of bunting which effectively displayed the rostrums in the foreground. On a large American flag hung from the stage was a picture of the nation's lamented chief, William McKinley. In front of the chairman's seat was a picture of Theodore Roosevelt. American flags in profusion and the other decorative features of the platform.

The auditorium was decorated with shields of the American colors, intermingled with various standards of the party.

The seven Assembly Districts were sectioned off, and the delegates of the Fifty-second, dividing the main aisle and facing nearest the chairman. In regular order on either side of the main aisle sat the delegates of the Fifty-first and Forty-ninth Districts, the Forty-eighth and Forty-seventh Districts and lastly the Forty-sixth District.

CONVENTION IS CALLED TO ORDER.

The Convention was called to order by Clarence Crowell, chairman of the Republican County Central Committee.

He said it was with great pleasure and pride that he did so. He felt that it was unnecessary to make a speech, because from the determined features he saw before him the verdict of the people after the Convention would be "well done." He would not make a speech, also, for the reason that the great triumvirate of Alameda statesmen, Perkins, Metcalf and Pardee had promised to be present and would make speeches.

He called for nominations for temporary chairman.

DR. TISDALE IS NAMED CHAIRMAN.

Guy C. Earl said:

"I am astonished by the remarks of the chairman that brevity will be acceptable. I rise to place in nomination one who has served two decades in the party. I nominate Dr. C. L. Tisdale for the honorable position of temporary chairman."

The nomination was made unanimously.

Dr. Tisdale spoke as follows in accepting the chair:

PERKINS AND METCALF ARE ENDORSED BY THE CONVENTION

The following resolutions were adopted by the Republican Convention today:

"We most heartily endorse the Administration of President Roosevelt, whom we regard as a wise and worthy successor to the lamented William McKinley, as being judicious, patriotic and forceful, and in consonance with the best traditions of the Republican party. President Roosevelt has shown a broad and enlightened foreign and domestic policy, and has shown himself to be a friend of the Pacific Coast as the reclamation of arid lands, the Ishman Canal and the exclusion of Chinese cheap labor; and he therefore deserves at our hands the support and endorsement which he has earned by his efforts to broaden the sphere of our national activities and to develop the resources of this particular section of our glorious Union. In recognition of his eminent services and sympathy with the West and its people, we pledge him the support of the Republicans of Alameda county for re-nomination in 1904."

"We endorse the course of Hon. George C. Perkins in the Senate, as being in accordance with the interests and the wishes of the people of California. He has served the people of this State ably and diligently, while representing the spirit and purposes of the Republican party with fidelity, and deserves the thanks of the public and the reward of a re-election. We therefore pledge every member of the Legislature nominated from the various Senatorial and Assembly Districts of this county to vote and labor for the return of Hon. George C. Perkins to the United States Senate."

"To Hon. Victor H. Metcalf, our Representative in Congress, this convention gives its unqualified endorsement. He has been an able, consistent and fearless Representative of the Third District and of the State of California, which he has served with honor and fidelity, and by his dignity and force of character has placed himself among the leaders of Congress. We recognize in the continued return to Congress of such an efficient Representative a great benefit to the State. In recognition of this benefit we assure him that Alameda county will insist upon his return to the National Legislature as long as he can be prevailed upon to accept the duties of this high position."

"We declare our firm opposition to all reciprocity treaties inconsistent with the protection to American labor and industry to which the Republican party stands pledged, and especially to any reciprocity arrangement with Cuba, as being destructive to the interests of the best sugar industry of California, in which large amounts of capital have been invested under the assurance that the same would be safeguarded by the protective tariff as other industries are protected; and we further declare our opposition to any reciprocal policy other than that laid down in the Republican national platform of 1900, which says: 'We favor the associated policy of reciprocity, so directed as to open our markets on favorable terms for what we do not ourselves produce in return for free foreign markets.' We endorse the action of the members of the California delegation in Congress in vindicating the declarations of the Republican national platform and standing firm in defense of the industries of this State."

DR. PARDEE SPEAKS BEFORE CONVENTION.

After the committees had been working for a few minutes, a man in the lobby shouted "Three cheers for Dr. Pardee!"

This was an indication that the Alameda county candidate for Governor, had arrived.

Chairman Tisdale then called the Convention to order again and asked: "What is the pleasure of the Convention?"

A speech from Dr. Pardee was the answer.

Pardee's name was greeted with cheers.

In the midst of the enthusiasm Harry Berchert arose and moved that a committee of three be appointed to escort Dr. Pardee to the stage.

The motion prevailed and the chair appointed as such committee, Messrs. Berchert, Wyckoff and Dr. Rowell of Berkeley.

Bert Swan called for three cheers for Dr. Pardee and they were given with a will.

The cheers were repeated and when the Doctor appeared on the stage there was a hurricane of applause, which culminated in every delegate rising to his feet, cheering to the full strength of his lungs and waving his hat with the wildest enthusiasm.

Dr. Pardee waited for several minutes to allow the demonstration to cease and when the enthusiastic delegates had taken their seats, Chairman Tisdale said that he felt to introduce Dr. Pardee to an Alameda county or to a California convention was the best expression of a work of supererogation.

This allusion to the popularity of the Doctor evoked a storm of applause and when the cheers had subsided, Dr. Pardee among other things said:

"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee: It fills me with the deepest gratitude to appear before a community which has known me from childhood. I have known Alameda for forty-five years as man and boy and I have never yet had occasion to be ashamed of them or to say that I regretted being one of them."

"The success of the party ticket will depend upon your deliberations today. So gentlemen be careful of your actions. Place in nomination men against whom no breath of shame may be blown, and you will have performed a duty to not only your State but to your nation. Good men have much to do with the success of the party."

"We are in the midst of a great civilization taking its way. The civilization of the world is drifting westward, therefore it behooves you to act wisely in sending men to the national legislative body to whom the State of California will have its eyes turned."

"Alameda county has long sought to head the State ticket, and if I am not mistaken we will head the ticket this year. We are going to Sacramento with a solid delegation and with a prestige second to none. I believe that unless Alameda will have this year the distinguished honor of leading the old Republican party in this State."

Dr. Pardee's speech was greeted with a round of applause and at times punctuated with noisy gusts of enthusiasm.

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED FOR BUSINESS

A. H. Breed—I suppose the first business will be the appointment of Committees on Credentials, Order of Business and on Platform and Resolutions.

The chairman then stated that such a motion was in order. The Convention unanimously adopted Breed's motion, to have the committees each composed of seven members, one from each Assembly District.

There was then a lull in the proceedings while Chairman Tisdale conferred with the secretary in the matter of the selection of committees.

The committees were named as follows:

Order of Business—Charles E. Snook, Fifth District; T. W. Harris, Forty-Sixth District; J. B. Lanktree, Forty-Seventh District; H. Hempstead, Forty-Eighth District; M. Hanley, Forty-Ninth District; G. E. Aldrich, Fifty-First District; S. N. Wyckoff, Fifty-Second District.

Platform and Resolutions—H. N. Rowell, Fifty-Second District; Charles Evans, Forty-Sixth District; S. W. Simpson, Forty-Seventh District; C. E. Crowell, Forty-Eighth District; J. W. Mott, Forty-Ninth District; A. P. Leach, Fifty-First District; Frank Harbold, Fifty-Second District.

Credentials—Chairman, W. E. Meek, Forty-Sixth District; W. B. Hinchman, Forty-Seventh District; S. W. Metcalf, Forty-Eighth District; A. J. Blaikie, Forty-Ninth District; L. G. Parker, Fifty-First District; S. W. Bilger, Fifty-Second District; W. K. Weir, Fifty-Third District.

The chairman then announced that there would be no further business until after the committees had reported. He then announced that the committees would meet in various places throughout the building and that creation.

REPORTS MADE ON CREDENTIALS

By this time some of the committees were ready to report, and the chair announced the fact. He said that the first thing in order would be the report of the Committee on Credentials.

The report of this committee was read and was substantially as appeared in yesterday's TRIBUNE.

The report, on motion of George Samuels, was adopted.

REPORTS ON THE ORDER OF BUSINESS

A recess of five minutes was ordered to enable the Committee on Order of Business to report.

The report of the committee, of which Mr. Snook was chairman, was read and was in substance as follows:

That the temporary officers be made permanent officers of the convention.

"That the Governing Committee or County Committee of the Republican party of Alameda county shall consist of twenty members in addition to the permanent chairman of the convention, who shall be ex-officio chairman of said committee, and the said members are to be elected as follows:

"Each Assembly District shall nominate to the convention one person for such district to be a member of said committee, and the remaining members thereof shall be nominated to this convention by a special committee of seven to be appointed by the chairman of the convention. All said nominations of committee shall be subject to the approval and confirmation of this convention. The said special committee of seven shall also recommend to this convention a committee of five to constitute the committee as provided by the act concerning purity of elections."

The order of nominations was decided on as follows:

The Superior Judges, District Attorney, Sheriff, County Clerk, County Assessor, County Recorder, County Treasurer, County Auditor, County Superintendent of Schools, County Tax Collector, County Surveyor, County Coroner, Public Administrator.

The report on motion of C. E. Snook was unanimously adopted.

The chair called for nominations for two assistant secretaries.

P. R. Bove, of the fifty-second named Ralph Pierce.

Another delegate named Edward Fitzpatrick.

Morris Isaacs named Louis Aiken.

Only three men are required.

Mr. Snook said that the committee had recommended only two assistant secretaries but he was in favor of accepting the three named.

There was no objection and the men named were elected assistant secretaries.

Sergeants-at-arms were then elected as follows, one from each assembly district: Forty-sixth, E. E. Bernal; forty-seventh, G. R. McConnell; forty-eighth, S. Hammond; forty-ninth, Howard Stille; fifty-first, G. E. Ingersoll; fifty-first, J. C. Marsh; fifty-second, Ezra Decoto.

William Gillan was selected as messenger.

A delegate moved to take a recess till 1 o'clock.

William Harris of Pleasanton moved to take a recess to 2 o'clock.

This motion prevailed and to strike the fancy of the delegates and the chair accordingly declared a recess until 2 o'clock.

The Convention re-convened at 2 o'clock.

On motion of Dr. E. A. Kelly, the committee on order of business was empowered to suggest to this Convention the names of the governing committee of the party.

The seven members named by the several assembly delegations.

NOMINATIONS FOR SUPERIOR JUDGES

The chair called for nominations for Superior Judges.

L. S. Church said this was a Republican year; a year laden with memories of the martyred McKinley and of successes under the leadership of President Roosevelt. Whenever the flag floated, there was felt the influence of this government. The purity and integrity of the Judiciary arose above party politics. The purity of the Judiciary of Alameda County was felt all over the State, and a man who had contributed to that reputation was the Hon. W. E. Greene. So long as he wore the judicial ermine it would remain a model and guide.

He then placed Judge Greene's name before the Convention.

The name was received with cheers.

The chair ruled that speeches would be limited to three minutes.

Clinton G. Dodge for the Fifty-first District presented the name of Harry G. Melvin for Superior Judge. He said that it was a pleasure to stand by a man who had been appreciated by his associates during his life and who was steadfast, true and reliable as a member of the Republican party.

George Samuel said Judge Greene had given him by his administration of justice to all and sundry toward none. The same was true of Judge Hall and he desired to say that all those who had been mentioned should be nominated.

A. P. Leach seconded the nomination of Judge Greene.

A. B. Shaw said that he recognized courtesy after justice in a Judge and Judge Hall was both courteous and just. He placed him in nomination.

Dr. Rowell of Berkeley said for judicial probity and judicial fellowship he was without a peer. He thought his name was Greene, still he was one of the whitest men on earth.

Asa Mendenhall seconded the nomination of Judge Hall.

M. V. Simpson seconded the nomination of Judge Melvin.

W. H. L. Hynes seconded the nomination of Judge Hall.

Dr. Rowell said that he had dealt out justice to every man, woman and child who had appeared before him.

C. G. Dodge moved the nomination close.

The motion was carried.

C. G. Dodge moved the Secretary cast the vote of the Convention for Judges Greene, Melvin and Hall, and the chair declared the three Judges mentioned as the nominees of the Convention.

Judge Melvin was seen in the hall and declined in favor of Judge Greene on the ground that age should go before beauty.

Judge Greene was then called for and his name was greeted with cheers.

A delegate moved that all three Judges take the stage at the same time.

This motion caused an immense amount of enthusiasm.

Judges Greene, Melvin and Hall then appeared on the stage and were received with a shout.

Each Judge as he appeared deposited $10 in the hands of the secretary.

The chair noticed this fact and said: "Each Judge has deposited $10 with the secretary for one nomination. That will be looked upon as judicial fellowship and that sum will be the one which will rule all this afternoon."

This was an intimation that each candidate would have to pay $10 for a nomination instead of $5, which has been the rule which has heretofore prevailed.

"I desire to thank the gentlemen who have spoken so kindly of me in the convention. I desire to thank those people who placed me in nomination three times before. It is equally an opportunity that I thank those who have in the past accorded approval and confirmation of this convention. The said special committee of seven shall also recommend to this convention a committee of five to constitute the committee as provided by the act concerning purity of elections."

"Gentlemen of the convention, I have but to thank you for the consideration and support of the party to all nominees was declared for, and it was recommended that copies of the resolutions be sent the Governor, the Congressional Representatives and Mr. Henderson."

M. Deplaston, an anti-Gage man, is chairman of the convention.

An additional resolution was passed demanding the re-election of Perkins as Senator and instructing the legislative representatives to vote for him.

REPORTS MADE ON CREDENTIALS

By this time some of the committees were ready to report, and the chair announced the fact. He said that the first thing in order would be the report of the Committee on Credentials.

The report of this committee was read and was substantially as appeared in yesterday's TRIBUNE.

The report, on motion of George Samuels, was adopted.

REPORTS ON THE ORDER OF BUSINESS

A recess of five minutes was ordered to enable the Committee on Order of Business to report.

The report of the committee, of which Mr. Snook was chairman, was read and was in substance as follows:

That the temporary officers be made permanent officers of the convention.

"That the Governing Committee or County Committee of the Republican party of Alameda county shall consist of twenty members in addition to the permanent chairman of the convention, who shall be ex-officio chairman of said committee, and the said members are to be elected as follows:

CLAIMS MADE BY THE CANDIDATES FOR GOVERNOR

Pardee's Backers Are Pleased With the Outlook—What the Gage Men Are Claiming.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 16.—So far as is discernible, Dr. Pardee is the only candidate that is getting any material accessions of strength.

The Gage managers are expressing great confidence, but they are working with extraordinary energy for men who have a sure thing. They are offering to make all sorts of combinations, always predicted on the proposition that "if you get in with Gage you go on the winning slate."

Those representations are hooted at by the anti-Gage men, who characterize them as bluffs.

When told that one of the Governor's political entourage claimed 400 votes on the first ballot, a leader of the opposition said: "Cut 200 off the figures and you are nearer correct." If Ruf stands up in the city Gage will not have over 115 votes from San Francisco.

"Besides Ruef's 22 he will lose from forty to fifty in the city."

This is a vast difference from the Gage claims, which never fall below 140 in San Francisco.

The only discouraging event to the anti-Gage forces today was Ruef's announcement that he favored J. O. Hayes of Santa Clara for Governor. This was news to Hayes, and the announcement is regarded as an attempt to create a diversion in the ranks of the Pardee and Flint followers.

It has had the effect of causing Ruef's good faith to be suspected, and every move he makes will be closely watched from now on. Two of Ruef's Primary League delegates went to Pardee's headquarters and voluntarily pledged themselves to the Doctor regardless of any arrangement Ruef might enter into.

The rumors of revolt among the delegates elected on the program ticket and classed for Gage are well founded. Some of them have pledged themselves to Pardee and some to Flint.

Colonel Burns and other friends of the Governor are making desperate efforts to repair the breach and bring the malcontents into line, but the emote is far from being quelled.

There is some gossip of springing Frank Short of Fresno as a dark horse, but this is side talk that nobody is ready to stand sponsor for. Short is a protégé of Senator Rowell's, and Senator Rowell is a leader of the opposition to the Governor.

The trading talk is discounted from the fact that the re-nomination of Charles F. Curry for Secretary of State and Ed Colgan for Controller is practically conceded.

Nobody appears to be contesting the State Treasurership with Truman Reeves. There remain only the Judgeship, the Attorney General, Superintendent of Public Schools, Clerk of the Supreme Court and Surveyor General.

Kirk's chances seem bad. He cast his fortunes with Gage in the interior and failed to gather many shells. If the Gage forces are compelled to trade it is expected that Kirk's office will be hung up on the auction pole.

Besides, San Francisco has a candidate, and if the Attorney Generalship is given to the interior, the San Francisco delegation will probably insist on naming the Superintendent of Schools.

Garoutte's friends are kicking because the bulk of the Gage delegates in San Francisco have been programmed for Beatty, and that is causing trouble.

Tuolumne's seven votes are for Gage, but they are first of all for Frank Street, who really thinks he has a chance to go to Congress.

So that places a string on the Governor's vote in old Tuolumne.

It is assumed by the Gage managers that Alden Anderson of Solano will be programmed for Lieutenant Governor, but then there is W. J. Crooks of Benicia, who wants to be Railroad Commissioner. It may come to a question of who is the stronger with the Solano delegation—Crooks or Anderson.

It is inferred that Al Johnson has been slated for State Printer in return for helping turn the hose on Mayor Clark's rebellion, but Sacramento has also got a candidate for Railroad Commissioner against Crooks. So, there's more trouble.

Martin Kelly holds the fortunes of Congressman Kahn in the hollow of his hands, but he is willing to let Kahn alone if C. S. Laumeister is slated again for Railroad Commissioner. They have got to come to Martin.

It's a pretty nice mix-up as it stands, and nobody can tell how the pudding will look after the bag is cut.

Lieutenant Governor J. H. Neff, of Placer, will probably be the choice of the anti-Gage forces for Chairman of the Convention.

TWO SENATORS WILL RUN.

FRANK LEAVITT AND JOSEPH KNOWLAND WILL MAKE THE RUN.

The Sixteenth Senatorial Convention met in caucus and chose Robert Yates as chairman. H. P. Travers was elected secretary.

Frank J. Barnett placed in nomination Hon. Frank W. Leavitt the present Senator from this District. The Convention unanimously nominated Mr. Leavitt.

The Purity Election Committee was then chosen as follows: F. Barnett, W. J. Hennessy, J. H. Grindley, C. A. Session, Charles Flaney.

SEVENTEENTH SENATORIAL.

Joseph Knowland is the unanimous choice for Senator in the Alameda District.

The Convention will be held late in the day.

CONVENTION AT STOCKTON.

LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATES ARE INSTRUCTED TO VOTE FOR PERKINS.

STOCKTON, Aug. 16.—During the afternoon session of the Republican County Convention in session here today, the Committee on Platform and Resolutions submitted a platform endorsing the Administration of the late President McKinley as continued by President Roosevelt; Senator Perkins and Congressmen Woods and Needham were commended; Orrin O. Henderson was endorsed for Railroad Commissioner; just and fair assessment of taxes and an economical county government were demanded; the cause of labor and the union label on all printing used by nominees was called for; the undivided support of the party to all nominees was declared for, and it was recommended that copies of the resolutions be sent the Governor, the Congressional Representatives and Mr. Henderson.

BOER GENERALS IN ENGLAND.

THEY WILL VISIT THE UNITED STATES BEFORE THEY RETURN HOME.

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 16.—General Botha, De Wet and Delany arrived here this morning and met a great reception, both from government officials and the public. The Boer Generals looked remarkably well and evidently were much pleased at the heartiness of the welcome accorded them. Soon after landing they boarded the steamship Niagara, where Joseph Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, Earl Roberts, and General Lord Kitchener greeted them. They were also introduced to Mrs. Chamberlain and Lady Roberts, with whom they chatted for some time. Official arrangements had been made to permit the Generals to witness the naval review, but after a conference with Abram Fischer, the former Boer delegate, who came from The Hague, it was announced that they intended to proceed directly to London in order to reach Holland as speedily as possible. The Generals go to Holland to pay their last respects to General Lucas Meyer, who died of heart disease on August 5.

General De Wet, in conversation here, confirmed the statement that he and his companions will visit the United States before returning to South Africa.

HEARTY RECEPTION
GIVEN IN LONDON.

LONDON, August 16.—The Boer Generals reached London in the course of the afternoon and were loudly cheered in the streets. Asked why they had declined the government's invitation to witness the naval review, the visitors remarked that they were "too tired after the long war and needed rest."

It is still uncertain whether or not they will return to Cotes to see the King.

The scene at the railroad station on the arrival of the Boers was remarkable. An enormous crowd gave them a welcome as hearty as given to Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener when they arrived here from South Africa. Shouts of "Good old De Wet," "Our friends, the enemy," and "Brave soldiers all," were frequently heard amidst salutes of cheers.

General De Wet was fairly cornered by a mob and had to be rescued by the police, who by force cleared a line of retreat for him.

LOSS BY A FIRE
IN LOS ANGELES.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—Fire today caused $5,000 damage to tenants occupying a number of half-story wooden buildings at the corner of Fifth and Spring streets. The blaze was the result of an explosion of gasoline in the little shop of a tailor. The loss is partly covered by insurance. George N. Black, lessee of the property, announced his intention after the fire of erecting a substantial three-story building on the space occupied by the destroyed shacks.

KING EDWARD SEES WARSHIP.

LAST EVENT ON THE CORONATION PROGRAM CARRIED OUT TODAY.

PORTSMOUTH, Aug. 16.—King Edward completed the program of the coronation festivities today by reviewing the fleet for the first time since his accession. From a spectacular point of view the assembling of a hundred and odd war vessels in the Roadstead off Spithead was a magnificent show, but to those looking beneath the brilliant veneer of paint and polish, it was evident that the fighting strength of the fleet was by no means formidable. The line of ships was thickly dotted with ineffectives. However, the display represented merely the home fleet, not a single vessel having been withdrawn from a foreign station to participate in the pageant.

The day opened fine. There was an immense influx of visitors. The waters of the Solent were covered with pleasure craft of every variety, from the tiny canoe to the big excursion steamer and every vantage point on shore was covered with spectators. At 8 a. m. in response to a signal, the fleet broke out day and in the space of a minute the lines of black hulls were transformed into varicolored lanes of fluttering bunting. Simultaneously the pennant of Admiral Sir Chas. Hotham, commander-in-chief at Portsmouth, was flung out from the peak of the Royal Sovereign, which today acted as flagship of the fleet. Five other admirals' flags were also in view in different sections of the parade. The five divisions in which the fleet was moored, were located mid-way between the Isle of Wight and the mainland.

GIVES ORDERS ABOUT RELIEF PARTY

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Wm. Zeigler, who has financed the Evelyn B. Baldwin Polar Exploration expedition, sent a cable of instructions today to Mr. Baldwin to acquaint him with the directions given to Wm. S. Champ, in charge of the relief and exploring party, which might be termed an auxiliary expedition. The fact that a letter of credit was cabled shows that Mr. Zeigler has not lost confidence in Mr. Baldwin. The cablegram, in full, reads as follows:

"Baldwin, Tromsøe—Champ in charge of Prithof with relief and exploring party fully equipped has been instructed, in case of failure, to meet Baldwin, or his failure to reach destination to winter in Franz Josef Land and to make independent dash in spring, 1903. Baldwin with America to return to Franz Josef Land to meet Champ's returning party and make an attempt to winter there and make another attempt for Pole the following spring, 1904. Letter of credit cabled today."

It is merely another of the phantoms that have been recently troubling the dreams of the Gates' faction."

As she picked it up it discharged without warning, the bullet striking Lizzie, who was standing directly in front of the gun and penetrating the center of the breast, lodging in the back just beneath the skin.

The little sufferer gave a groan and died within thirty minutes.

PAIRS WERE KILLED.

He Warned His Master That the Tire Was Broken and Told Him to Stop.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—The chauffeur of the automobile in which Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Fair were killed, whose name is Bretz, returned to Paris this morning.

In an interview with the correspondent of the Associated Press he threw some further light on the cause of the accident, saying:

"When we left Trouville Mr. Fair was suffering from bronchial catarrh. He coughed frequently on the road and during the fits of coughing his face was much congested, evidently producing slight dizziness. He had just been coughing when I noticed that the tire of one of the hind wheels was deflated."

"I realized the danger and jumped to the front and leaning forward I shouted to Mr. Fair's ear in English, 'Stop quick, tire no good!'"

"Mr. Fair glanced back, but he did not reply."

"Apparently he tried to stop, but in doing so he made the wrong steering movement, as the machine swerved across the road and went in a straight line for a tree."

"Mrs. Fair, as she saw the direction of the automobile was taking, clasped her husband's shoulders with her arms and turned her face back towards me with a look which said plainly, 'We are lost.'"

"The exact moment came the crash and I was thrown into a field beside the road and stunned."

"When I recovered, which I did quickly, I jumped to the side of my master and mistress and with the help of the chateau gate-keeper's wife extricated the bodies from the wreck."

"Asked if either then showed signs of life, Bretz replied:

"Both seemed to be dead, but I was in such a dazed condition from the shock and so affected by the ghastly spectacle presented by the wounds on the heads of both victims that I did not notice whether either moved or not."

"The gate-keeper's wife said afterwards that Mr. Fair moved his foot and that his wife moved her hand as they lay on the ground, but I did not see the movements."

"The woman did not say whether the man or the wife stirred last."

"The bodies are due to arrive in Paris at 3:55 this afternoon. They will be deposited in the vault of the Church of the Madeleine until they are shipped to the United States."

COMMANDER M'KEA MAKES A REPORT TO WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The Navy Department today received a mail report from Commander McRea of the gunboat Machias, dated Cape Haytien, July 31, detailing the conditions as he found them on his arrival. The report is as follows:

"The arrival of the ship was considered very opportune, as an attack by land and sea was considered imminent. I called on the Provisional Governor, General Nord Alexis, who is also Secretary of War in the Provisional Government. He told me he was too much engaged as Governor and practically in the field to return my visit at once, but would be glad to do so if we remained here long enough. He also said he did not consider foreign interests menaced, also that there must be an end to this movement very soon. The movement itself he could not very clearly explain, for the reason that his own advice were very meager and unreliable."

"I told the consul to communicate to the foreign consuls that I would object to any bombardment by the rebel ships without due notice. There are no important American interests existing at this place. Business is at a standstill."

"On the 31st I called again on the Governor. He told me he had received a large consignment of arms and ammunition and would immediately advance against the enemy. To my question, 'do you know of any antagonism against the foreign consuls or merchants by the lower classes of citizens?' he replied: 'No, I do not think it exists.' We then entered into an agreement by which he was to inform me by signal of his retreat, in which case I agreed to land and protect embarkation of foreigners, in case I considered it necessary. He reiterated the statement that a man-of-war in the harbor now was most welcome and necessary, as it prevented a bombardment and preserved the peace of the city."

RATHBONE SISTERS
VISIT OAKLAND.

One hundred and sixty of the visiting Rathbone Sisters were taken on an excursion today by the Oakland Board of Trade under the personal supervision of Secretary Edwin Stearns. The visitors were met at the foot of Broadway this morning and boarded special cars for Berkeley. After a tour of the University grounds the excursionists were shown through Piedmont and then landed at the Hotel Metropole.

In the afternoon the cars were taken for San Leandro and Hayward and on the return trip Mills College was visited and a light lunch was served to the visitors by Mrs. Mills and her students. Then the return was made to Oakland and just before departing for San Francisco each visitor was presented with a lovely bouquet of California flowers and all left with a deep impression of the wonderful resources of this valley.

OLD MINER
PASSES AWAY

ALBERT LACKEY DIED AT HIS HOME IN OAKLAND LAST NIGHT.

The old-time mining men of the Comstock lode are rapidly passing away. The next to follow John W. Mackay is Albert Lackey, who died at his home here last night.

Mr. Lackey had been connected with the management of the Comstock mines for the past forty-one years and was one of the most prominent Masons on the Pacific Coast. The cause of death was pleuro-pneumonia.

Mr. Lackey had been superintending the Overman and Caledonia mines at Gold Hill, Nev., for twenty-two years, up to a year ago, when he retired owing to ill health.

Born at Youngstown, Ohio, in 1838, he went to Virginia City in 1859 and was first employed as an expert carpenter and timberman. He framed the first set of timbers that was used in the Ophir mine, cutting them from trees on the slope of Mount Davidson. He was (formerly) the owner of the Gould and Curry mine at the time of the first great fire in that property, and went down into the shaft at the risk of his life and rescued a number of miners caught by the flames and smoke. He was also active in saving lives at the Yellow Jacket and Behrler mines. Afterward he became a partner in the Overman and Caledonia mines, he remained in charge of those properties until November, 1890, when he retired to live with his family at Oakland. He was a man of great executive ability and a thoroughly practical miner.

ATTORNEY FAILS TO ANSWER DIVORCE.

Attorney W. S. O'Brien, having failed to answer the suit for divorce recently begun by his wife, Rosie A. O'Brien, a default was today entered against him. Mrs. O'Brien asks a divorce on the ground of failure to provide. The couple were married about ten years ago. At that time O'Brien was just entering upon the practice of his profession. His bride owned considerable property in her own right.

PRINTERS UNION IN SESSION.

DENOUNCED ANARCHISM—VOTE $2000 TO STRIKING COAL MINERS.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 16.—The forty-eighth convention of the International Typographical Union adjourned today. Resolutions were adopted regretting the assassination of President McKinley and denouncing anarchism in all forms.

Among the telegrams was one from President John Mitchell, stating that the success of the United Mine Workers in the coal strike would depend largely upon the support of other unions. The convention at once unanimously, by a rising vote, ordered the Treasurer to send $2,000 to President Mitchell.

A telegram of thanks was received from Los Angeles Union for financial aid in the fight against a non-union paper in that city. While submitting a paper to a referendum vote the proposition for an assessment of five cents per month per capita for the benefit of the Los Angeles Union, it was decided at the same time to submit also two propositions for the better support of the Typographical Journal as the monthly organ of the International Typographical Union.

Adjourned to meet next August in Washington.

SWEAT BOX SYSTEM IS TOO MUCH FOR A WITNESS IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Probability of the release of Oscar Thompson, the former roomer of Mrs. Anne Bartholin, now being held, as the star witness in the murder mystery of Mrs. Bartholin, and Minnie Mitchell, occupied the attention of the police today. On the petition of Attorney Mowbray, who objected to the illegal retention of the witness and the ordeal of the "sweat box," which, it is said, has almost wrecked Thompson's health, Judge Patton issued a writ of Habeas Corpus returnable at two o'clock this afternoon. "Old Dad" John Claffey, the stableman at the laundry where Thompson was driver, was included in the writ. Attorney Mowbray said he thought Thompson was being dealt with too severely by the police and that he should be protected.

RECORDS MADE AT LONDON SPORTS.

LONDON, August 16.—At the Cliftonville Athletic sports today the 100-yard handicap was won by Murray of Dublin, with two yards handicap. He defeated A. F. Duffy (American) who was at scratch, and Westney (American) who has three yards handicap. Murray's time was ten seconds.

The 120-yard hurdle handicap was won by S. S. Jones of the New York Athletic Club, with three yards handicap. Allen of Penn., at scratch, was second. Time, 16.2 seconds.

STABBED DURING A SALOON FIGHT

B. Miller, an undertaker, residing in Berkeley, was treated at the Receiving Hospital last night for five wounds on his right hand. He said he had become involved in a quarrel with a man named Bush in a Twelfth street saloon and the latter had stabbed him with a knife. Miller said he intended to swear out a warrant for the arrest of his assailant.

A SERMON

"BRETHREN: I trust you will bear with me a few minutes this evening with reference to a text that must be very close to the hearts of all good women—the education of the child. Nor does the mother's ambition rest here, for she hopes to see him reach manhood's estate well-bred. We all know the importance Holy Writ gives to music, and next to love itself, music is the greatest refining influence in all the world. Following this lead educated mechanics have produced the King of all musical instruments—the Piano. You make no mistake then in co-operating with the wife, not only in educating the child, but in making it possible to bring gentle manners into your home. You are justified in making a great personal sacrifice to see your dependents fairly and squarely started in life's race. See that LOVE dwells in your home, but LOVE alone is not sufficient, for HE needs the help of his great assistant—MUSIC. * * * If I have impressed upon your minds the importance of the ART in your home life, our meeting this evening has not been without benefit. Let us join in singing—

O Music! still the art divine."

The man has never lived who did not, some time in life, feel the urgent need of a friend's advice.

Since the piano is king of musical instruments we wish to call your attention to a gentle Ruler—HE IS KING OF THE GREAT MIDDLE CLASS—HIS NAME IS LEGION—HE IS CALLED THE STARR.

The Starr Piano is one of the best medium priced pianos made; it is endorsed by musicians for its wonderfully delicate action, and it is recommended by mechanics as a gem of tool worker's art. It is A PIANO refined in tone and thoroughly reliable.

We have lots of them—all woods—all sizes—your choice—$6.00 a month. We pay cartage.

SOME INTELLIGENT VOTERS.

Some of the kicks against the workings of the primary law set one to doubting if a large proportion of presumably intelligent men are not wholly unfitted by nature to exercise the franchise. One man grumbles because he could not find the polling place, and another complains because he voted for a set of delegates nominated in another district, while a third is wroth because he was not consulted in naming the candidates for delegates. It is useless to talk to such people. They are fundamentally incapable of understanding the simplest proposition. The polling places and the boundaries of each district and precinct were advertised day after day in the newspapers. Each ticket shows in what particular district the candidates on it are running, and the law allows any man to run as a delegate or to nominate and vote for anyone else. It is a race free for all. Any intelligent man ought to know what district he lives in and where his polling place is situated. It is his business to find out. A man who can read simply makes an ass of himself when he complains of voting in the Forty-ninth district for a list of delegates nominated in the Forty-eighth district. What are we to think of the intelligence or interest of a man who pays no attention to the specific directions advertised in the papers, but wakes up on election day with an idea that he ought to vote, and begins telephoning frantically to find out what ward and district he lives and where his polling place is situated. Such are the men who kick at the primary law, which they never read and know nothing about. They are the despair of citizens who believe the safety of the nation rests with the intelligence of the voter.

VICTIMS OF RECKLESSNESS.

Clearly the tragic accident which cost Charles L. Fair and his wife their lives was due to Mr. Fair's own astounding recklessness. The chauffeur was not at fault for Mr. Fair was directing the machine, nor can the accident be charged to any inherent defect of the automobile. According to the chauffeur's statement the machine was going at the incredible speed of 92 miles an hour. It is said that Mr. Fair frequently ran it up to a speed of 85 miles an hour. Think of this tremendous speed over an ordinary road! It is but a little less than the rate attained by the swiftest locomotives on the smoothest and safest railway tracks. Running at such high speed over even the best of wagon roads was bound to result in a smash up sooner or later. However, instead of presenting an argument against the automobile as a useful road vehicle, the accident in which the Fairs were killed is an object lesson in its favor while serving as a warning against the reckless abuse of so valuable an invention. The overloaded gun which exploded and kills the man at the breach is no more to be condemned than is the automobile when it breaks down under the terrific pace of ninety miles an hour.

POLITICS IN FRESNO.

Mayor Stephens of Fresno is an undetector. He is also a Democrat. His politics and his business both indicate a person not likely to lose an opportunity. And Mayor Stephens shows that he is up to his speed by attempting to remove Chester H. Rowell as City Civil Service Commissioner for active participation in the primary last Tuesday. The Mayor accuses him of doing politics. Mr. Rowell is a Republican, and Mayor Stephens feels his Democratic gorge rise at a Republican daring to have anything to say in politics. Nevertheless the joke is somewhat hard on Editor Rowell, for he is an ardent Civil Service reformer and has taken the high ground that it is improper for officials to hustle around the polls on election day. He has frequently grown indignant at the pernicious activity of political opponents, he being firmly convinced that anyone opposed to him in politics is a rather bad sort of person. His fight with the undertaker Mayor will be watched with interest. For a reform Republican and a champion of Civil Service, Mr. Rowell is quite strenuous. By the way, the undertaker's hearse overturned the editorial inkstand in the municipal election, Mr. Stephens and Mr. Rowell being rival candidates.

Charles A. Walsh, secretary of the National Democratic Committee, advises the Democratic Convention of Iowa to reaffirm the Kansas City platform. We were under the impression that it doesn't matter a sumawake what the Democratic Convention of Iowa does or says. Being a superfluous body, its expressions are not only ex parte, but irrelevant and immaterial if not wholly incompetent. Mr. Walsh evidently has not got on to the fact that Democratic politics is a sort of rough joke, like the fakir at the county fair who always places himself in position to be knocked through the barrel.

There is going to be a great fight for Charley Fair's millions. Already the lawyers are gathering and hovering like the eagles over the tomb of Barabara, and there will be some fat pickings before they will leave their prey. The Fair estate has been mine for the legal fraternity, and apparently a new lead in it has been struck.

The editor of the Stockton Mail is lying behind a log with a stick in his hand to give the poll tax a crack when it comes along. All the same, he will either have to settle or square it with the Assessor. The poll tax is like the tick—decidedly unpleasant, but a stayer from way back.

JENNIE HEATON LOSES BATTLE

SUSTAINS FIRST SERIOUS DEFEAT IN THE FIGHT FOR HEATON ESTATE.

Miss Jennie M. Heaton was non-suited yesterday afternoon by Judge Hall in her endeavor to recover $30,000 worth of property situated on Ninth street between Harrison and Webster streets.

Miss Heaton brought suit against Lulu Amette Leach, Mary Cordelia Heaton and Nellie Leach to have three deeds conveying the property involved to them set aside on the ground that the deeds had been fraudulently obtained after the death of the late Warren D. Heaton and that it was not the intention of the deceased to deed away his property.

This is the first serious set-back received by Miss Heaton. In her battle to be declared the daughter of the late capitalist, the case has been passed on once by the Supreme Court and twice by the Superior Court, ending in Miss Heaton being declared the daughter of Warren D. Heaton. Under this decision Miss Heaton was made administratrix of the late capitalist's estate, consisting of about $50,000 worth of property other than the $30,000 which Judge Hall has decided rightfully belongs to other persons.

Miss Heaton procured her first financial backing in the prosecution of her case through a lucky lottery ticket which netted her over $500.

She will appeal from the decision of Judge Hall.

ROBERT GARDNER IS A CANDIDATE.

Robert Gardner, who is well known in this city, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Surveyor General.

He was elected a delegate to the National Union Convention, which met in Baltimore on June 7, 1894, which nominated Abraham Lincoln for President for a second term.

He was appointed by President Grant Register of the United States Land Office for Humboldt District April, 1899.

Mr. Gardner was nominated for State Surveyor General on the ticket with Newton Booth for Governor in 1871 and elected. He was re-nominated for State Surveyor General on the ticket with Timothy G. Phelps for Governor in 1875, and was defeated with the ticket. William Irwin, Democrat, being elected Governor.

She Says To Let Us All Be Cheerful--Habit of Brooding Over Wrongs is a Bad One.

Women are commonly reputed to have but slight knowledge of men, so here are a few quotations which may serve as aids in that direction.

"Men are April when they woo, December when they wed."—Shakespeare.

"Men have died from time to time, and worms have eaten them, but not for love."—Shakespeare.

"Men may live like fools, but fools they cannot die."—Young.

"The man who blushes is not quite a brute."—Young.

"A man of pleasure is a man of pains."—Young.

"Clever men are good, but they are not the best."—Thomas Carlyle.

"There are five reasons why men drink: Good wine, a friend, because I'm dry, Or lest I should be by and bye, Or any other reason why."—John Strimond.

"Claret is the liquor for boys; port for men; but he who aspires to be a hero must drink brandy."—Johnson.

"Few men are admired by their servants."—Montaigne.

"Sigh no more, ladies, sigh no more. Men were deceivers ever, One foot in sea and one on shore, To one thing constant never."—Shakespeare.

"Why should man whose blood is warm within, Sit like his grandire cut in alabaster?"—Shakespeare.

"Young men think old men fools, but old men know young men are fools."—George Chapman.

"Man is a two-legged animal without feathers."—Plott.

"He that hath wife and children hath given hostages to fortune, for they are impediments to great enterprises, either of virtue or mischief."—Francis Bacon.

"I have thought some of nature's journeymen had made men and not made them well, they imitated humanity so abominably."—Shakespeare.

"I never knew any man in my life who could not bear another's misfortune perfectly like a Christian."—Pope.

"Words are men's daughters, but God's sons are things."—Dr. Johnson.

"Men would be angels, angels would be gods."—Pope.

"Every true man's apparel fits your thief."—Shakespeare.

"O what may man within him hide Though angel on the outward side."—Shakespeare.

"Literary men are a perpetual priesthood."—Thomas Carlyle.

"The gratitude of most men is but a secret desire of receiving greater benefits."—Pope.

"All men that are ruined are ruined on the side of their natural propensities."—Burke.

"There's daggers in men's smiles."—Shakespeare.

"Men's evil manners live in brass; their virtues we write in water."—Shakespeare.

"On their own merits modest men are dumb."—George Colman Jr.

each day, try to lighten the burdens of others about them, the world would grow brighter and better for their being.

It is a moral obligation to be cheerful under any and all circumstances, and to hide, as much as possible, all that is disagreeable and unpleasant.

The world has small use for whiners and repiners.

California of all States in the Union, is the one above others in which to live Al Fresco during at least nine months in the year, if one desires.

It is an ideal land for an out of door existence, and each season its advantages are appreciated more and more highly. Whole families now shut up their houses during school vacation and camp in the woods and along the shore.

It is not necessary to go far from San Francisco to find hundreds of available spots in which to pitch a tent, and so easy are facilities for communication and methods of travel, that thousands of business men go back and forth daily from these camps.

There are no sudden rainstorms here during the summer to interfere with the pleasures of out of door life. The skies are always blue and the air balmy.

If we of Oakland followed the European plan of privacy in our own door yards, and hemmed and shut them in from the street with walls and hedges, how many delightful hours could be spent beneath the shade of the magnolia trees on our own lawns.

Open grounds serve to beautify the city, but they do not enhance privacy, nor encourage lounging out of doors.

One of the visiting Pythians wants to know why we don't have places where people can buy fruit and sit down and eat it then and there? He says that he's been buying fruit ever since he arrived, but has to wait until he gets to his rooms before he can enjoy eating it, although longing to all the time.

This same Knight declares that never in his life has he seen so much candy and ice cream eaten as here.

"Why is it," he asks, "when you have so much delicious fruit that people spend so much money on frozen things and sweets?" I leave the solution to brighter minds than mine, hoping I may have sown through the agency of this Pythian, the seeds of a money making enterprise whereby the stranger within our gates may sit down in some cozy little corner and indulge in all the fruit he cares to buy.

CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.

The Oakland Conservatory of Music and the Gregory School of Music, San Francisco, both of which schools are under the direction of Professor Adolf Gregory, reopen for the coming season Monday next, the 18th inst. The Oakland School is still located in the Blake Block, 1065 Washington street, more commodious rooms having been secured for this season's classes. The satisfaction expressed by all who have studied in this Conservatory, has led to an increase in the number of its pupils that Professor Gregory has had to add several other teachers of well known ability to this season's faculty. In San Francisco in addition to the branches at Twenty-first and Howard streets and 1412 Polk street, a downtown office will be opened this season on Market street. Among the notable additions to the faculty, may be mentioned the eminent violin virtuoso Wendell Fromm, the Conservatory of Music, Prague, Bohemia, who will have charge of the classes in advanced ensemble and solo playing.

Monthly instruction will be held throughout the season, both schools and recitals of chamber music in which advanced pupils will participate besides production of opera by members of the operatic classes.

COW FAILED TO FILL THE PAIL.

Because her recently purchased milk cow did not come up to the guaranteed standard of eighteen quarts per day, Mrs. Dora S. Green of Thirtieth avenue prays that Jacob Weil be arrested for obtaining money by false pretenses.

A few days ago Mrs. Green owned a red jersey cow that was capable of giving four quarts of milk. Now Mrs. Green has a number of customers to supply, and the four quarts were insufficient to fill their wants. Therefore when Jacob Weil offered to exchange his milk cow that he claimed had a record of eighteen quarts a day, for Mrs. Green's cow and $25 to boot, the good woman was only too glad to seal the bargain by handing over her cow and $25, and leading home Weil's cow with a record of eighteen quarts.

But at the first sitting Mrs. Green's newly made purchase failed to fill the pail and her customers were without milk in their coffee that morning and a subsequent feed of clover failed to coax out the alleged eighteen quarts of milk that Mrs. Green's recent agreement was supposed to possess.

That is why Mrs. Green called upon Prosecutor Abe Leach and until the trouble is settled Mrs. Green has to resort to the pump to fulfill the wants of her customers.

ELECTRIC WIRES CAUSE TWO FIRES.

Two small fires were caused about 9 o'clock last evening by electric wires becoming crossed. The first alarm was sounded from Mosbacher's Clock House. Thirtieth street and Second came shortly afterwards from Ebush's cigar stand. Both fires were extinguished before any damage was done.

No good can possibly be derived from such a course, and irretrievable harm is often done.

Fresh air, sunshine and a wholesome interest in others would cure half the ills of womankind.

If instead of thinking constantly about the unpleasant events in their own lives, they would, say for one hour each day, try to lighten the burdens of others about them, the world would grow brighter and better for their being.

It is a moral obligation to be cheerful under any and all circumstances, and to hide, as much as possible, all that is disagreeable and unpleasant.

The world has small use for whiners and repiners.

California of all States in the Union, is the one above others in which to live Al Fresco during at least nine months in the year, if one desires.

It is an ideal land for an out of door existence, and each season its advantages are appreciated more and more highly. Whole families now shut up their houses during school vacation and camp in the woods and along the shore.

It is not necessary to go far from San Francisco to find hundreds of available spots in which to pitch a tent, and so easy are facilities for communication and methods of travel, that thousands of business men go back and forth daily from these camps.

There are no sudden rainstorms here during the summer to interfere with the pleasures of out of door life. The skies are always blue and the air balmy.

If we of Oakland followed the European plan of privacy in our own door yards, and hemmed and shut them in from the street with walls and hedges, how many delightful hours could be spent beneath the shade of the magnolia trees on our own lawns.

Open grounds serve to beautify the city, but they do not enhance privacy, nor encourage lounging out of doors.

One of the visiting Pythians wants to know why we don't have places where people can buy fruit and sit down and eat it then and there? He says that he's been buying fruit ever since he arrived, but has to wait until he gets to his rooms before he can enjoy eating it, although longing to all the time.

This same Knight declares that never in his life has he seen so much candy and ice cream eaten as here.

"Why is it," he asks, "when you have so much delicious fruit that people spend so much money on frozen things and sweets?" I leave the solution to brighter minds than mine, hoping I may have sown through the agency of this Pythian, the seeds of a money making enterprise whereby the stranger within our gates may sit down in some cozy little corner and indulge in all the fruit he cares to buy.

CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.

The Oakland Conservatory of Music and the Gregory School of Music, San Francisco, both of which schools are under the direction of Professor Adolf Gregory, reopen for the coming season Monday next, the 18th inst. The Oakland School is still located in the Blake Block, 1065 Washington street, more commodious rooms having been secured for this season's classes. The satisfaction expressed by all who have studied in this Conservatory, has led to an increase in the number of its pupils that Professor Gregory has had to add several other teachers of well known ability to this season's faculty. In San Francisco in addition to the branches at Twenty-first and Howard streets and 1412 Polk street, a downtown office will be opened this season on Market street. Among the notable additions to the faculty, may be mentioned the eminent violin virtuoso Wendell Fromm, the Conservatory of Music, Prague, Bohemia, who will have charge of the classes in advanced ensemble and solo playing.

Monthly instruction will be held throughout the season, both schools and recitals of chamber music in which advanced pupils will participate besides production of opera by members of the operatic classes.

COW FAILED TO FILL THE PAIL.

Because her recently purchased milk cow did not come up to the guaranteed standard of eighteen quarts per day, Mrs. Dora S. Green of Thirtieth avenue prays that Jacob Weil be arrested for obtaining money by false pretenses.

A few days ago Mrs. Green owned a red jersey cow that was capable of giving four quarts of milk. Now Mrs. Green has a number of customers to supply, and the four quarts were insufficient to fill their wants. Therefore when Jacob Weil offered to exchange his milk cow that he claimed had a record of eighteen quarts a day, for Mrs. Green's cow and $25 to boot, the good woman was only too glad to seal the bargain by handing over her cow and $25, and leading home Weil's cow with a record of eighteen quarts.

But at the first sitting Mrs. Green's newly made purchase failed to fill the pail and her customers were without milk in their coffee that morning and a subsequent feed of clover failed to coax out the alleged eighteen quarts of milk that Mrs. Green's recent agreement was supposed to possess.

That is why Mrs. Green called upon Prosecutor Abe Leach and until the trouble is settled Mrs. Green has to resort to the pump to fulfill the wants of her customers.

LETTER CARRIERS WITNESS THE GREAT PERFORMANCE OF DAMON AND PYTHIAS.

At the Dewey Theatre last night there was an excellent audience to witness the great production of "Damon and Pythias," which has been put on the stage in so perfect a manner by Manager Stevens. It was the unanimous opinion of the audience that a finer production of the piece could not have been desired. Robert Downing was simply perfect as Damon. Mr. Blunkall was inspiring as Pythias, and the Columbia of Effie Bond satisfied every requirement of the character.

There were present in the audience all the members of the Letter Carriers Association, and by them the play was greatly appreciated.

All the principals in the cast were enthusiastically called before the curtain.

THE new year opens with many calls from business firms for our graduates that we cannot fill.

During the past week we have received 6 applications for our graduates from San Francisco. 3 applications for our graduates from Oakland. 1 application from Fort Bragg, Cal.

Owing to the fact that our graduates take positions so quickly as they are qualified we are often unable to meet the constantly increasing demand from the business public.

It is our plan and purpose to provide for our students in every department the very latest and best methods known to business college work—to provide the strongest and best teaching force that money can command, and to give technical training in the most complete manner and in the briefest time consistent with sound training and thorough work.

Thorough Courses in Business, Shorthand, Electrical, Civil or Mechanical Engineering.

Students can enter at any time. Individual instructions.

MEDDLER'S INTERESTING GOSSIP ABOUT THE SMART SET.

Engagements, Receptions and Luncheons Recorded During the Week.

WHO IS THE LADY?

I have just been hearing about a girl who is a regular Becky Sharp. She isn't a society girl, nor known to society at all as yet, but, in this queer world it wouldn't be at all surprising if, at some future time, she were attending our teas and other affairs. The girl belongs to a respectable hard-working family, living in that part of Oakland commonly called "the dumps," but some of the thirty summers of her life have been exceedingly gay ones, and for some years she was one of the "hello" girls at the Oakland telephone office leaving that place for the mansion of a prominent society woman living not a hundred miles from Linda Vista Heights, having answered an advertisement and become companion to the above mentioned woman, who, of course, knows nothing of the girl's history. The girl is now driving about in Mrs. Blank's carriage and accompanies her to the different watering places, and does not look at all bad in the neat black gowns she is now wearing. Mrs. Blank is a lonely woman having married off her niece to a wealthy doctor, and seems to have taken a great fancy to her companion. When not with Mrs. Blank, the companion spends her time walking about quiet streets with a handsome young man, many years her junior, whose parents are too much taken up with the new home they are building in the Lakeside district to guard him more carefully. However, a sharp-eyed sister of his is expected home from Paris very shortly, and if she doesn't put a stop to it, I'll be willing to tell you who I am.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Britton leave next Tuesday for a six weeks' trip in the East. During their absence they will meet their daughter, Florence, who has been visiting in Tennessee during the summer. They will then spend some time in New York and Washington.

ADAMS' LUNCHEON.

Mrs. Adams' luncheon was a small affair, but was perfectly appointed and very pretty, and afterwards they all saw Henry Miller in "The Only Way." The luncheon table was laid in one of the small private dining-rooms of the University Club, pink carnations and pink lights making it very lovely. Those at table were Mrs. Partridge and her young step-daughter, Hattie Partridge, Margaret Simpson and Mrs. Franklin Moore, both of San Francisco, and Mrs. Fred Stolp.

NANCE O'NEIL AND IRVING.

And so our Nance O'Neil isn't to play with Henry Irving at the Lyceum Theater in London, although she has been booked for nearly a year to begin an engagement there next month. The theater has been condemned as unsafe and probably will never be opened again, and the great actor, who is at present in money difficulties, finds himself in greater trouble.

Nance O'Neil writes to friends in Oakland that she and McKee Rankin are to appear at the Adelphi instead of the Lyceum, and that Mr. Rankin has sued the Lyceum management for heavy damages. The latter theater, which has stood on its present site for 130 years, and is to be torn down, will leave Irving without a home. A project is on foot to build a magnificent theater for the titled actor, and Miss O'Neil says that the money is ready, but that there is some difficulty in finding a suitable site. After a provincial tour to extend well into next autumn, Sir Henry will return to London, when he will have Ellen Terry with him again, all the talk about their misunderstanding being altogether untrue.

BRAND NUPTIALS.

Charlie Field of Alameda, who will be one of the chief actors at the coming Bohemian Club "jinks," was one of the ushers at the wedding of Lottie Brand of San Francisco, who was married to Frank Branch Riley of Portland, Oregon, the other evening, at her home on Buchanan street. The wedding was a large affair, and Rev. Charles R. Brown of the First Congregational Church officiated. Bessie Henry was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Clinton Stone and Miss Amy Ferguson. Dr. Edward Sewall acted as best man, Charlie Field and Louis Gerlinger, Jr. of Portland, being the ushers.

After the wedding supper, the young couple left for a wedding journey and are to reside in Portland later.

BOHEMIANS AS INDIANS.

The Bohemian Club jinks is being actively rehearsed by the members, and most of those who are to take part are already at Guerneville. Dalton Harrison of Alameda, who always enjoys the jinks to the utmost and is one of the most enthusiastic of the members, is automobiling in Europe this year, so he won't be in the redwoods. This year, everything is Indian, and the scheme is to be an Indian play with a slender romance, which will end in the burning of Care. There are to be some Indian dances under the supervision of Amadee Joulain, who has recently spent many months sketching and studying the Indians of New Mexico, and the large artist is himself to be a medicine man, and Dr. Wilson Shields, who is one of the best actors in San Francisco, will have a prominent part.

TRAMPLING HERDS.

Instead of issuing passes to persons leaving a theater during the performance, the Japanese mark the hand of the departing spectator with an Indian rubber stamp, the mark varying each evening in form and color. This system wouldn't be popular with American theater-goers, but those who are trampled upon by people who make a habit of leaving the theater between each act, wouldn't mind if the departing ones were branded on the hand or any other place, with a red-hot iron.

HAS ANOTHER CHARMER.

A certain robust young lady of this town, who insists upon wearing some of the queerest, although costly costumes we have ever stared at, does not seem at all downcast because a certain young man so hotly denied being engaged to her and then left for the north to cool off, but is consoling herself very nicely with a young man from the south, who is apparently devoted to her, and the gossips are wondering if there will be a wedding.

LOWENBERG'S CONDESCENSION.

One of the weeklies from across the bay states that the story is going the rounds that young Lieutenant Lowenberg is declaring that his engagement with Ruth Dunham, an heiress, is quite a condescension on his part. When being congratulated upon his engagement, he has answered, "Oh, I don't know," or "Oh, yes, I am willing, and she has the money." I hate people who always say "I told you so," but if you remember, I've told you my doubts about this same young man. Perhaps his remarks were merely intended to be funny, but even so, they show what sort he is, and were not in good taste, or wise, because they were snapped up and circulated with the speed that marks all such reports. People meditating matrimony are always interesting to the multitude, and all ears are open to their utterances. Mary Dunham says she objects to the engagement on account of Ruth's youth, but she may have other reasons too.

PRODIGAL KNOCKERS.

The cups and other trophies of the Burlingame Club have been sent to Sireve's for repairs. The necessity for this followed the recent celebration by a young prodigal who returned to San Francisco the other day, after narrowly escaping death on the imprisoned steamer Portland. The youth is well known on this side, too. One of his relatives recently accompanied Tom Driscoll to Yosemite in an automobile, but the automobile broke down and they had to ride into the valley on a farmer's wagon, towing the machine along behind. The boy's relatives, fancying that his experience might have had a sobering effect, joyfully took him to their hearts again. His delight at being restored to favor was shown by a celebration, however, that knocked out much more than their expectations. First, the bartender was knocked out, and then certain visitors, including his disgraced, middle-aged uncle, who tried to restrain him. Later, it came the turn of the polo and golf trophies, that formed the chief decoration of the club-house. They were knocked out so badly that their restoration will require much time and labor. His long-suffering family have made all amends possible, and the prodigal has once again been exiled to the wilderness.

JUNOESQUE GIRL ENGAGED.

The only important engagement announced lately has been that of Junoesque Elizabeth Leigh to Dr. Lemuel Adams, who has arrived from the East to be associated in work with his relative, Dr. Frank L. Adams. Elizabeth is one of the few stunning girls in town, and, since her return from the East, she is looking even better groomed than ever if that were possible. The Samuel Hubbards chaperoned her to New York. For a long time we all thought there was something very serious between Elizabeth and Charlie Hubbard, but after staying away a year or more, she comes back engaged, so we must have been wrong. She was one of the Field Seminary girls and a favorite, so I don't see why she hasn't gone about more since she has been at home with her sister and brother-in-law, the Frank Adamses, whose big square house on Telegraph avenue would be a splendid place in which to entertain. No plans have been made for the wedding as yet, the only thing they have made up their minds about is that the affair shall take place in the spring.

LILLIE'S DAUGHTER'S BRIDAL.

Speaking of weddings reminds me that I've just been reading an account of the big wedding of Langtry's daughter, Jeanne, to Ian Malcolm, which was the most talked-off affair in English society, next to the illness of the King. Haven't they a queer way of doing things across the pond? While Langtry has never been received at all, that is, since her stage career, her daughter has been chaperoned into society by duchesses and she has gone with the highest in the land. Prime Minister Balfour was prevented from attending the ceremony only by the most urgent public business, but about fifty of the groom's fellow members of Parliament were present. The rare and distinguishing feature of the ceremony was the presence of a series of the great Indian celebrities who had been brought to London for the coronation. Beautiful as were the dresses of the women, and all society was present in its best gowns, they paled into insignificance in comparison with the glittering turbans, flowing robes and picturesque and richly-colored clothes of the East. The crush at the church was tremendous. The bride had been so much talked and written about that the women were wild to see her. The general opinion was that she and the groom were the handsomest couple of the year. One reporter in describing her, said: "As she walked down the church after her wedding, she looked like some mediaeval saint; so sweet, pure and rapt, and ingenious was her face." The bride didn't carry flowers. Her coronation prayer-book was what she thought the most appropriate thing to bear on such an auspicious and solemn occasion in her life.

The King, in spite of his own trouble, found time to send a beautiful present, and a line of congratulation.

LILLIE MAY COME.

The Oaklanders who are late in returning from the vicinity of Lake County may come across Lillie Langtry, who is expected to come out to look over her property up there very shortly. Mrs. Langtry's new and unsuccessful theater in London, the Imperial, has been bought by the Methodists, who have raised $6,250,000 to acquire property in the vicinity of Westminster Abbey.

CRUISING ABOARD.

Fred Perkins and his chum, Sam Knowles, also of Oakland, have been assigned to the cruiser Albany, now in European waters, and are having a fine time seeing the sights over there.

MISS SPRECKELS' CAVALIER.

Lillie Spreckels, of whom I wrote last week, created quite a sensation in the Islands, where she was chaperoned about by Mrs. Sands Forman, her mother, Mrs. John Spreckels having gone out very little while down there. Miss Spreckels' most ardent cavalier was Bruce Cartwright, and, at the Islands and across the bay, people are expecting the announcement of their engagement. The man in the case is very well off, so John Spreckels, who isn't encouraging poor young sons-in-law, may consent. He gave a big house-party in honor of the San Francisco belle, leasing the Halewa Hotel for several days for the affair, to which he invited the very smartest of the "smart set" of Honolulu.

OLD FLIRTATION AND SECOND MARRIAGE.

They say that pretty Mrs. Nat Messer is now going to marry Robby Bolton, a member of the old Bolton family of San Francisco, a rich stockbroker, and a relative of Mrs. Will Tevis. He has been devoted to Mrs. Messer for years, and now that her husband is divorcing her, or has already divorced her, Mr. Bolton is going to marry her. I used to see them driving over here years ago. You know, she had an excuse for coming over, as Marie Messer was boarding at Field Seminary, but she was anything but motherly, and if it hadn't been for Mrs. Al Havens and Marietta, who used to take her to their home for days together, when poor Marie, who was always a frail little thing, was ill with those frightful headaches, the poor girl would have had mighty little comfort. She used to try to talk her flighty mother out of her flirtations, but it was of no use, and when, after their return from a trip around the world, Marie, who was the one thing that kept Nat Messer from divorcing his wife, died, her mother went long and loudly and gowned herself in the heaviest crepe she could buy.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Really, the Knights of Pythias handed San Francisco a beautiful little gold brick. First there was going to be fifty thousand pilgrims, but it finally melted to less than five, and I doubt much if there were five thousand strangers in San Francisco, outside the country people, who took advantage of the cheap rates to come to town. But these, of course, do their fair share of shopping here and buy a little more than they would at home, so it's an ill wind which blows nobody any good. But I doubt much if the merchants get back the money they donated for decorations and the like.

The parade was very disappointing—nothing at all to look at—for the regatta seemed a pot pourri made up of ideas borrowed from Knights Templar and the militia and the gold braid of the grand officers was really such that one pitted the horses. By night, the city was a fairyland and the decorations were really a success. However, deliver me from crowds, and the trains, street cars and boats have been a nightmare.

Taking them all in all, I suppose the Christian Endeavorers were the best crowd we ever had here. They were young; they are sort of young people who marry and invariably raise families—and they make good colonizing material. Most of the later gatherings have been a bit disappointing. What's the use of putting yourself to all the expense and the beastly inconvenience of entertaining a crowd of visitors unless the State is going to reap a return?

Oakland got out her poor old faded streamers for the visitors. Really, it seems to me that it's about time call in those pieces of bunting. They have certainly served their term, or, if not, they are no longer things of beauty. Indeed, they were always rather ugly.

DEATH OF THE FAIRS.

All San Francisco is shocked over the death of the Fairs, for though neither husband nor wife was ever admitted to what is technically termed "Society," almost everyone knew them by sight. They had a beautiful suite on the Market and Annie street corner of the top floor of the Palace Hotel, and it was beautifully furnished. Mrs. Fair refurnished it only a short time before she went away, though they were planning to take an apartment in New York, where they would have stormed society with some success, apparently, judging by the success of others with the same sort of past who have tried it there.

For years the Fairs have lived at the Palace Hotel and it was really amusing to see the women draw their skirts away from her in the elevator. I always thought of that woman of Scripture, of whom the Master said, "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone." Mrs. Fair was exceedingly pretty, graceful, stylish—quite a lady to look at. I never heard her talk, but her grammar certainly couldn't be worse than some that one hears in Society—and as for her morals, well, she at least had the courage of her convictions and was honest—and I dare say even her actions would compare favorably with those of some, at least, of the women who criticized her most harshly. For there are some whited sepulchers who live behind very respectable doorplates, you know.

Perhaps if Mrs. Fair hadn't been so good-looking and so well-dressed the tabbies would have been more ready to forgive her, for Midas' wand is not yet worn out, you know—it glides everything it touches. When she married Charlie Fair the new Mrs. Fair was a stout woman with rather swaggering walk, but her yearly trip to Europe, where she drank thinning waters and went always under the care of the same famous masseuse, had given her the most perfect figure in San Francisco. Then she exercised self-control, too, and never ate nor drank to excess and the result was that she remained sylph-like. Her dresses were exquisite most costly and most tasteful.

As for her husband—he made him. He must have loved her well, and she must have had high ideals and some aspirations, for she made a man of him, for had she so willed it and had she not cared for him, she could have led him to drink himself to death in a year, in which case she would have had all the money to spend as she liked.

It is not generally known, but Mrs. Fair was very good to her relatives in the East. She played the fairy daughter to them, as, indeed, she did to many poor people in San Francisco. For she had known what it was to be poor and she was not enamored of poverty. When the doll show was held at the Palace Hotel Mrs. Fair was always a generous patron, but you should have seen the women scurry into corners and drag their husbands with them, and watch her as though she were an ogre while she was there. I always wondered whether they thought she was going to pounce upon the poor, unsuspecting little darlings and carry them off to her terrible lair.

Another thing that is not generally known is that young Mrs. Vanderbilt had been very nice to her sister-in-law. I don't know that she ever entertained her publicly, but Virginia Vanderbilt is one of the most good-natured little things in the world, and she was fond of her brother and used to have them quietly to dinner in New York. There were scandals in the Vanderbilt closet, too, so probably the young husband did not vigorously object.

Not long ago an agent of the Fair estate approached a certain popular city charity which is always hard-up and always making demands on the public for money, and said that if they would make Mrs. Fair a director she would give them a donation of fifty thousand dollars. The good dames thought it over carefully—they did want that money—and then they decided that they couldn't—they really couldn't—but wouldn't Mrs. Fair make the donation anyway? Mrs. Fair, I'm happy to say, didn't and that ended the incident.

But it's too bad they had to die—for they enjoyed their money and they both loved life—and after all automobiling is an innocent dissipation, if not a safe one. Now there will be a contest over the estate in all probability, unless the Fairs have learned wisdom by experience and will compromise, and the money—what the lawyers leave—will go to people who don't need it in the least.

ANOTHER TRAGEDY.

Another little tragedy that's likely to come to light in the Palace Hotel is the end of the dream of bliss of Lloyd Breckenridge and his young wife, formerly Adelaide Murphy. They have a suite of six rooms in the fashionable hotel; they sport a maid and a valet, and they haven't the slightest idea where the money to pay for these things is coming from. In addition, Mr. Young Husband sends his wife the rarest and most expensive orchids every day. All he has is a very slender allowance, and so far neither Mamma Sharon, Uncle Tevis nor Papa Murphy has shown the slightest sign of helping out with the children's menage. But the Breckenridges, true to their happy-go-lucky natures, are not taking thought for the morrow where-with they shall be clothed or fed. I hope their Heavenly Father will be good to them now that their father and uncles have forsaken them, and will help them out, since they follow so literally the scriptural injunction.

Word comes from Europe that Florence Breckenridge is afflicted with the family melancholia and that her attendants never leave her alone for a moment, lest she do a mischief to herself, for this is the family failing. The melancholia of this gentle girl is not difficult to explain, for within a year her uncle Hugh and her grandmother Tevis have died and her brother committed suicide. The tendency to melancholia in the family is attributed by some to the dipsomania of the father. Lloyd Breckenridge is the only one whose never had it—but he's apt to cause melancholia in others—for he inherits the mercurial temperament of his father and is a high roller of the most elusive description.

NED GREENWAY.

Ned Greenway has been entertaining again—this time it was a dinner for Ethel Hornick, Miss Waldron and Miss Grace Elliston, all of the Miller company. The dinner was at the Bohemian Club.

LUCIE MAY HAYES.

Mrs. Lucie May Hayes of East Oakland is spending the month of August with Mr. and Mrs. George Sperry at their country home at Alta, in the Sierra Nevada.

ARTHUR NORTH.

I understand that Arthur North, brother of Hart North, is paying ardent attention to a pretty and clever Sacramento girl, who was one of the party which also included Mr. North at Independence Lake this summer. The young lady is Miss Deming, a relation of the Crockers, and she was the recipient some time ago of ten thousand dollars from her aunt Crocker. This money, well invested, has made quite a neat income for the young woman's dress allowance. Miss Deming has been abroad for some months with her sister, Miss Daisy. Miss Daisy has been studying painting in Paris, and Miss Ella has been perfecting herself in book binding—so popular an accomplishment and business with women just now.

McKISICK ENGAGED.

Robertson Topp McKisick, formerly well known in Oakland and Berkeley as the second son of Judge McKisick, once the most renowned chancery lawyer in the State, is practicing law in Sacramento and is engaged to be married to Miss Jean Herrick, a Sacramento girl. Mr. McKisick formerly lived with his father's family in Oakland, at the Crellin and at Tubbs' Hotel. In fact, they lived at Tubbs' Hotel when the place was destroyed by fire. He is a graduate of the State University.

Madeleine McKisick, the eldest daughter, is making something of a success on the stage, I'm told. She made an unfortunate marriage to one of the Brugieres and broke her mother's heart. For Madeleine was handsome and the McKisicks have blood, and though their fortunes were very fallen, a clever mother and a pretty daughter should have been able to pull off a good match for Madeleine. Brugiere had prospects, of course, but he was young and hopelessly erratic and the marriage turned out as all the prophecies predicted, only it didn't last as long as they thought it would. I never saw a more wretched looking young wife than Madeleine Brugiere—she was tragically personified. She's had some hard knocks on the stage, I dare say, but she has some ability in that line, I'm convinced, and her good looks will see her through.

MAY YOHE.

Call me a prophet and the son of a prophet, but what did I tell you about Putnam Bradlee Strong and May Yohe? They have gone and come together again, of course, and Mamma Strong was pretty much won. Miss Yohe is still an actress, it seems—she is able to impose on everybody. Now they talk of marriage.

Shades of the poets, please forgive me, but would Petrarch have written sonnets all his life if his lovely Laura had been his wife? I think not.

MARGARET ANGLIN.

Margaret Anglin's Camille is occupying a deal of popular attention just now. They say "it will be one of the most interesting performances ever. Of course no American girl can play the first act of "Camille," and we might as well give over expecting it—no one but Bernhardt can do that convincingly—but Miss Anglin should be great in the last three acts. On Miss Anglin's shoulders, more than on those of any other woman, has fallen the emotional mantle of Clara Morris. You know it is said of Clara Morris that while she was writing the farewell letter to Armand in "Camille," her tears small-pox-pitting the paper and the audience sniffing audibly beyond the footlights, she winked at some one behind the scenes and remarked:

"I've got 'em tonight, all right!"

It would be lovely to marry an actress, wouldn't it?—one who had the gift of weeping at will, as Miss Anglin has. One would never be able to tell whether she was acting or feeling, but it would be dollars to doughnuts that she would be acting, for we women are an insincere lot—it's the men who always tell the truth. They're the ones to be infallibly depended upon, aren't they? Dear little truthful James.

MRS. JANE SATHER.

Mrs. Jane Sather has given the University of California a $10,000 gateway and bridge, to be erected at the Telegraph avenue entrance, and John Galen Howard, architect for the University, is now completing the plans. This is not the first splendid gift the University has received from Mrs. Sather who is apparently not eccentric all through, as most people are inclined to think.

AN HONORED GUEST.

Mrs. William Geer Hitchcock of New York who was Cassie Drum of this city, has been the honored guest at several small affairs both at San Mateo, where she has been visiting the F. G. Drums, and here, where Mary Barker gave a very informal tea for her, on Wednesday, and Mrs. Edward Hale Campbell and her sister, Georgie Strong, entertained a few friends for her at luncheon on the following day. Mrs. Drum and Mrs. J. M. Driscoll both gave big luncheons for Mrs. Hitchcock at San Mateo. Mrs. Drum is somewhat of an invalid and so doesn't entertain often, but her luncheon was charming, the decorations shaded from pink to red, carnations being used, the name cards were water colored and the luncheon cloth was lovely, Cluny lace over linen, broad pink satin ribbon being placed under the lace, around the edge. Some of the guests were Mrs. Driscoll, Mrs. Charles E. Green, Mrs. Johns, Mrs. E. L. Parsons, Mrs. Eugene Lent, and of course Miss Hitchcock, who is with the Hitchcocks, who are thinking of returning home very shortly.

CONGRESSMAN METCALF.

Congressman and Mrs. Victor Metcalf, Miss Edith Kitamiller, a relative of the former, and Congressman and Mrs. James E. Watson of Indiana, went up to Mare Island today on the steamer Frisbie. Mr. Watson is of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, and comes to the Coast as a delegate to the PythianConclave.

AT GOLF CLUB.

The first affair that has been given at the Golf Club since Mr. and Mrs. Charles Addison Phillips were entertained there by the Robert Watts, the C. O. G. Millers and Mrs. Donald Y. Campbell, was the big luncheon given by Annie Miller on Tuesday, for her sister, Mrs. John Moon, who is again in Oakland, after such a long absence in Arizona for the benefit of the Major's health. The guests were seated at round tables decorated with ferns and pink Egyptian lotus flowers, and everything was awfully swell. Some of those present were Amy Regan Long, who was welcomed home by every one, and her dainty little sister-in-law, Mrs. Mark Regan; Miss Lucy Herrick, Bessie McNear, who has returned from Tahoe; Mrs. Lillian Brown Everett, Miss Spiers and Miss Kate Hutchinson of San Francisco, Nellie Chabot, Mrs. Andy Stone, Mrs. Harry Williams, Florine Brown, Miss Margaret Herrick, Miss de Fremery, Miss Whitney, Hattie Bakewell, Mrs. Fred Magee, Mrs. Harry Miller, Mrs. Edson Adams, Josephine Pierce, Mrs. C. O. G. Miller, Mrs. Cline of Los Angeles, Mrs. Donald Campbell, Mrs. Colin Ross, Mrs. Josiah Stanford, Mrs. Harrison Clay, Mrs. Charles R. Brown, Mrs. Peter Bowles, Mrs. von Loben Sels, and Mrs. Tom Prather.

UNIQUE AFFAIR.

The most unique affair of the week was the Robin Hood garden party given last evening by Mrs. Touchard of Berkeley, who leaves soon for the East.

The garden was lighted with hundreds of Japanese lanterns and the scene was a very, very pretty one.

CARD CLUBS.

The card clubs are now coming to the front again, Mrs. Walter Henry having entertained the Monday Afternoon Euchre Club at her new home on Twenty-third street, near the new Riding Club, Viva Nicholson carrying off the prize.

MRS. HAYDEN'S LUNCHEON.

And with Mrs. Bruce Hayden's luncheon for her niece, Miss Celia Seymour of Brooklyn, New York, who is visiting her, Mrs. Ernest Cotton's informal telephone card party for fifteen friends, and the luncheon given by Elizabeth Scupham yesterday, complimentary to Mrs. Melville Dozier, Jr. of Los Angeles, who is visiting her people here; I think, that considering we haven't all returned from the country, that the week in society hasn't been so awfully slow, after all. Don't you agree with your friend.

THE MEDDLER.

RETURN FROM EAST.

Mrs. J. W. Stevens and her daughters, Mrs. W. E. Sharon of Piedmont gave a luncheon on Wednesday at her home, Casa Monata. The guest of honor was Mrs. Laura Ingalls of New York, who is traveling on the coast. Mr. Ingalls and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Allen, nee Sharon, are old friends, and the Allees are now occupying the Ingalls' apartments in New York. The dining-room was a study in green and white, the table carrying an arrangement of gypsophylla. Luncheon was served and the guests were entertained by Mrs. Ingalls, who gave them an informal talk on New York club life, she herself being a member of several women's and literary clubs.

Those present were Mrs. John Ballard of San Francisco, Mrs. A. D. Sharon, Mrs. E. F. Taylor, Mrs. Thomas Crellin, Mrs. William Lettis Oliver, Mrs. E. C. Morrison, Mrs. E. W. Gorrell, Mrs. Bratnober, Mrs. Florence Wing, Mrs. Harold St. Lawrence Farr, Mrs. W. E. Sharon and the guest of honor, Mrs. Laura Ingalls.

ALAMEDA SOCIAL EVENT.

A social event in Alameda Thursday evening was the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bordwell, nee Houston, at their new home on Buena Vista avenue. The residence was artistically decorated in green and pink in honor of the occasion, and a large number of guests were pleasantly entertained. During the evening refreshments were served.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Bordwell, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. (Continued on Page 7.)

Recently Mrs. Ritchie L. Dunn entertained friends at luncheon at the Costigan summer home in Mill Valley.

It was a very pretty affair, and her guests were Mrs. Charles Farquarson, Mrs. Will Thomas, Mrs. Fank Bates, and Mrs. James Costigan.

Mrs. Lovell White also entertained at Mill Valley this week. She has a most artistic summer home there.

Mrs. White's guests were the members of the "Out-Door Art League," a club of great future possibilities, as has been proven by similar efforts in the past.

Mrs. Robert Lee Stephenson also entertained informally in honor of Mrs. George Doubleday, formerly Miss Alice Moffitt.

The luncheon was a very pretty one, the color scheme of violet being daintily worked out. The guests were Mrs. George Doubleday, Mrs. Henry Diekmann, Mrs. Robert Knight, Miss Jean Rawlings, Miss Mason and Miss Margaret Sinclair.

Mrs. Bruce Hayden entertained this week in honor of Mr. Hayden's niece, Miss Cecilia Seymour, who is here from New York.

Miss Seymour is spending the summer here for a rest, and for the benefit of her health. She is an artist of much note in New York, her landscape work receiving deserved recognition there. She is also one of the popular teachers of the Pratt Institute.

The guests invited were: Mrs. T. L. Barker, Mrs. Thomas Crellin, Mrs. Charles Palmer, Mrs. J. R. Burnham, Mrs. M. W. Kales, Mrs. John A. Stanley, Mrs. Thomas Douglas, Mrs. Edward Walsh, Mrs. H. R. Beiden.

Mrs. Hayden was assisted in entertaining her guests by her daughter, Florence Hayden.

DINNERS.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodward celebrated a very happy anniversary this week, the tenth anniversary of their wedding.

A dinner was given in honor of the interesting holiday, at which only relatives were present.

COMING NUPTIALS.

The wedding of two well-known Oakland young people, Miss Mabel Root and Harry E. Cable, is to be solemnized at the residence of the bride, next Tuesday evening. Only relatives, the bride and groom are to witness the ceremony.

Miss Root has a large acquaintance-ship, and is the daughter of Mrs. M. S. Root of Hobart street, and a sister of Charles Root, manager of Fuller & Co. at Sacramento.

Mr. Cable is a popular Oakland business man, and is being congratulated by a host of friends.

An extended honeymoon is being planned, but the destination is kept a secret.

Numerous and costly presents are arriving from far and near relatives and friends, which the couple most sincerely appreciate.

GERMAN LUNCHEON.

Mrs. Herman Krusi gave a German luncheon Thursday afternoon at her home on Central avenue, the affair being in honor of Mrs. Coe of Evanston, wife of Professor Coe of Northwestern University. German songs were rendered by Miss Blanche Tisdale. The attending guests were dressed in the costumes of German peasants.

MRS. HAYDEN AS HOSTESS.

Mrs. Bruce Hayden was the hostess yesterday at a luncheon given at her home on Madison street in honor of her niece, Miss Celia Seymour of Brooklyn. The table was decorated with green and white. The place cards were water color sketches, Dutch in theme, the work of Miss Seymour. Covers were laid for twelve. Those present were: Mrs. Bruce Hayden, Mrs. Charles Adams, Mrs. Celia Seymour, Mrs. J. R. Burnham, Mrs. M. W. Kales, Mrs. Thomas Coghill, Mrs. John Stanley, Mrs. Edward Walsh, Mrs. J. Barker, Mrs. C. E. Palmer, Mrs. Thomas Crellin and Mrs. H. K. Beiden.

HOME WEDDING.

A pretty home wedding occurred Thursday night at the home of the groom's aunt, Mrs. E. B. Borwell, 862 Cedar street, in the Encinal City, when Miss Valeria Comingore became the bride of Perry C. Van Fleet. The ceremony was performed in the presence of relatives and friends by Rev. Martin N. Ray of St. John's Episcopal Church, Oakland. The bride wore Paris mouseline, trimmed with real lace. Miss Anna Van Fleet

OAKLAND MAN IS IN TROUBLE IN THE ENCINAL

J. H. Miller Arrested on Serious Charge—News Notes From the City of Alameda.

ALAMEDA, August 16.—J. H. Miller, an Oakland paper hanger now occupies a cell in the city prison.

He was arrested last night by Officer Joe Lawrence for acting in an offensive manner towards a number of women at the West End.

The man is an old offender having been arrested about eight years ago on a similar complaint, at which time the prosecuting witness refused to appear against him.

It was reported to the police department some time ago that a strange man had been acting in a peculiar manner about the city and the police were instructed to watch for the person, with the result that he was captured last night.

In speaking of the man this morning, Sergeant Kemp of the police department said: "He is a hard character, and is the same person who was arrested here eight years ago on a similar charge. We have his picture and record. He is undoubtedly the man of whom recent complaints have been made."

ASSISTED DOGS TO ESCAPE POUNDMAN.

ALAMEDA, Aug. 16.—Poundmaster Ewing scored to a complaint this morning charging A. Schenckman with having interfered with him in the pursuit of his duties. Ewing claims that the man followed the pound wagon on his wheel and when a dog was pursued that Schenckman would chase the animal out of the track of the dogcatcher. In two instances the man caught the dogs and threw them over the fence. When arrested Schenckman put up $5 bail.

VOTING FOR QUEEN OF WATER CARNIVAL.

ALAMEDA, Aug. 16.—Yesterday's event of the balloting for queen of the water carnival showed a great increase over that of the first day. Tot Decker was in the lead, with a number of new names in the field. Following is a list of the names: Tot Decker, 280; Harry Morrison, 250; Robert Clay, 225; Dollie Tarpey, 225; Ruby Schlosser, 225; Charlotte Zimmermann, 225; Johnson, 225; Mrs. Alphonse, 225; Miss Kelly, 225; Porter Hillman, 225; Edna Metzger, 225; Edna Larkin, 225; Isabelle Hooper and Mabel McMillan, 225.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF CARNIVAL COMMITTEES.

ALAMEDA, Aug. 16.—The Executive Committee having charge of the water carnival and the heads of the sub-committees met last night to arrange certain details of the affair. It was reported that over $2,000 had already been subscribed towards the carnival.

Bids for furnishing music were opened and the band of this city was selected after some discussion. The committees were unanimous in the selection of a union band.

The reports of the various committees were received. The Finance Committee reported that preparations for these features were well under way. The aquatic parade will be the most elaborate feature of the carnival. It will include a string of brilliantly decorated boats over a mile in length.

The committee decided that the queen's gown would be purchased out of the general fund. It will be a marvelous creation of silks and stipples.

Another meeting will be held in the near future.

DIED AT HER BROTHER'S HOME.

ALAMEDA, Aug. 16.—Last night Fannie L. Richardson died at the home of her brother, who resides at 717 Santa Clara avenue. Miss Richardson came to Alameda from Ukiah two weeks ago to take charge of her brother's home, his wife having died last January. She had been ill for some time, and several days ago her complaint took a serious turn which resulted fatally. The deceased was a native of San Francisco and 30 years of age. The body was shipped to Ukiah this afternoon, where it will be interred.

Eleanor Landers are at the Sea Beach Hotel, Santa Cruz.

General and Mrs. Houghton are still at the Vendome, and Miss Minnie Houghton is visiting friends in the McCloud river.

Mrs. Charles Houghton and Miss Houghton will return in a few days from Bithedale, where they have spent the past three months.

Professor and Mrs. Hazard of Denver have been the guests of Mrs. Wm. H. Friend and Miss Bobson.

Miss Bradbury, Miss Verdon and Mr. Louis Bradbury recently returned from an extended tour abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Wate are spending the summer in Los Gatos.

The Bradbury family, who have been traveling, are expected to return soon.

Mr. Alfred Von der Ropp and children returned to their home on Lake street recently, after having spent some pleasant weeks at Rowlandman.

The H. M. A. Millers are going to San Francisco, leaving Oakland the first of next month. Their future home will be at 2911 Pacific avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Parcells have gone east for a visit of some weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley A. Jacobs leave next week for an extended trip to the places of interest about Puget Sound.

Later Mr. Jacobs will return to his duties in San Francisco, and Mrs. Jacobs will go to Boston to meet her son, Frank Jacobs, who is returning from abroad.

Miss Lavina Jones is visiting her parents in Seattle, Washington.

Mrs. William Richardson, formerly Miss Elizabeth Gage, will not be here till October.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gardner Cooke leave this week for an outing at Independence Lake.

Miss Jones, Miss Center and Miss Blanchard of Miss Horton's school have recently returned from Independence Lake. They chaperoned Miss Florence Gaddaway to Berkeley. Miss Horton is at Santa Barbara.

Mrs. George Cook will spend the winter with her sister, Mrs. J. A. Folger.

Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Timmerman have taken for the winter the residence of Mrs. George W. Cook, 1326 Linden street.

F. Coffey (removed to 1243 Broadway, opp. Postoffice) recovers (lost) at the latest Parisian Cleaning and Dyeing. Dry cleaning a specialty. Telephone Main 175.

DR. GUNSAULUS CAN STAY IN LONDON.

NEW YORK, August 16.—The report that Dr. Gunsaulus of Chicago will succeed Dr. Parker at the City Temple is premature, says the London correspondent of the Tribune, but consultations have been held during the week and he can evidently stay in London if he wished to give up his work in America.

Dr. Gunsaulus' oratory and extraordinary energy and interest in the industrial education have made a deep impression here. His American friends think, however, that he will make a serious mistake if he allows himself to be transferred to an environment so unlike the one to which he was accustomed in the West.

MAY HAVE BEEN THE MURDERER.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 16.—A man believed to have been William J. Bartholin, the Chicago murderer suspect, was in Des Moines on Thursday and Friday. He left the city last night, ostensibly for Burlington, to which place he requested that his mail be forwarded. No further trace of him has been found. He registered here as A. E. Edgar, Chicago, and represented himself as the traveling agent of a gas supply house. The night clerk at the hotel where the man stopped asserted positively that he fits exactly the descriptions of Bartholin.

SAYS HUSBAND KISSED THE SERVANT GIRL

MERRY TIMES AT THE HOME OF JOHN F. COMMINS IN EAST OAKLAND.

Mrs. Anna Commins, who, at the age of 16, secretly married John F. Commins, a real estate dealer, with offices in the Mills Building, San Francisco, in Alameda, has followed up the sensational divorce complaint she filed yesterday with statements that she expects a cross-complaint to be filed by her husband. In the complaint the wife alleges that her husband threatened to kill her if she did not leave their home, 870 East Twelfth street. She further alleges that her husband frequently kissed the servant girl in her presence, insisting that the domestic sit next to him at the table.

Mrs. Commins admits with candor that her wily conduct has not been according to strictly conventional lines.

"I have been a little indiscreet," she said today, "and I suppose every one will blame me for this divorce business. My husband is twice my age and so stern that he wants me to stay at home all the time. There is a young man whom I like very much and some time ago I gave him a watch for a keepsake, but my husband sent after it. I have another gentleman friend whom I have had to dinner at my house, and I do not deny that there are others with whom I have gone out at night. Mr. Commins has objected to my actions, but his own have not been above reproach. He used to make love to our servant girl, insisted that she sit beside him at the table, and often kissed her in my presence."

"I suppose there will be all kinds of sensational charges by both sides when this case comes to trial, and some prominent Oakland men are likely to be brought into unenviable notoriety."

Judge Ellsworth has issued an order restraining the defendant from removing any furniture from the East Twelfth street dwelling.

James A. Johnson, the attorney for Commins, said last night:

"I do not know whether we will file a cross-complaint or not. I have nothing to say just now about our side of the case."

AUTO RIDERS SCORCH IN FRANCE

THEY TAKE TERRIBLE RISKS GOING AT SUCH A HIGH RATE OF SPEED.

NEW YORK, August 16.—The cause of the automobile accident in which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fair were killed and also of other motor accidents is a topic of discussion among the members of the Automobile Club of Paris, says the Tribune correspondent. The unanimous opinion is that the members of the recognized clubs and owners of automobiles should be impressed with the terrible risk they run in indulging in outbursts of speed, even on the long, broad and perfect roads of Normandy.

There is the deepest sympathy felt for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fair and it is admitted that almost every automobile on the favorite road between Nantes and Evreux, which is as smooth as a billiard table, lets out full speed. It is also noted that in the last fortnight at Trouville and Dieppe and Aix-les-Bains that there has been a great deal too much auto-scorching, usually by new and young owners of motor cars.

One of the offenders in this respect is Rod Sloan, the American, who is reported as going at a maximum speed through the Norman villages, near Trouville, Pont Leveque and Cabourg. The road from Evreux to Pacy-sur-Sure is in perfect condition. The spot where the accident occurred, exactly in front of the gates of the chateau de Mal, is on a moderate descending grade. Four miles to the west of Pacy the road is slightly winding to make the descent to the river. There are double rows of fine elm trees beside the route, and on each side of the road there are gutters about a yard wide, paved with large, rough stones. It was doubtless one of these rough stones that pierced the front tire, which was the immediate cause of the accident.

PRESIDENT TAKES TO THE WOODS.

OYSTER BAY, Aug. 16.—The President and some of the members of his family left Sagamore Hill this morning for a picnic in the woods. They will return in time for the President to entertain Bishop O'Gorman at a dinner this evening.

FUNERAL OF PATSY CARROLL HELD REUNION OF FAMILY.

THE WELL-KNOWN SPORTING MAN LAID TO FINAL REST.

PULLMANS MEET AT THE SUMMER HOME, CASTLE REST, NEAR CHICAGO.

NEW YORK, August 16.—The funeral of Patsy Carroll, the sporting man, who died a few days ago, took place yesterday, the remains being interred in St. Mary's Cemetery. The remains were borne to the Church of the Immaculate Conception from McManus' undertaking parlors, where they had remained from the time of the demise.

The casket was surrounded by a number of floral pieces of an elaborate character, which had been sent by friends who had been close to the deceased in life. From San Francisco came men prominent in many walks of life, many of whom had known the deceased for years.

The services were simple and impressive, and at the close, the remains, which rested in a beautiful casket, were borne to the cemetery.

The pall-bearers were Harry Corbett, Harry Bradley, John Donnelly, Senator John Feeney, William Gallagher and Dr. Baxley.

EXCHANGED SHOTS WITH THE CONVICTS

FLORENCE, Ala., Aug. 16.—Five men supposed to be the escaped Tennessee convicts, have been encountered twenty miles north of Florence by Deputy Sheriff White of Waynesboro, Tenn. White exchanged shots with the men, firing from behind his horse, but they escaped. As far as known, none of the shots took effect. A posse is in pursuit.

A CHANCE TO BUY ELEVENTH STREET ARCH.

The arch on Eleventh street, near Lafayette Square, which was erected by the Elks of this city and which was one of the features of the Elks' fair and carnival, is for sale. The Elks allowed it to remain for the Fourth of July and to be redecorated for the late Pythian Day. It has, therefore, served a triple purpose. It has accomplished its purpose and now it is in the way. Offers for the lumber in it may be sent to Max Schleuter at the northeast corner of Washington and Ninth streets.

AN ENGAGEMENT.

Society is interested in the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Lelek and Dr. Lemuel Adams, who recently arrived here from the East to be professionally associated with his kinsman, Dr. Frank L. Adams, a resident of the bridge-club.

Miss Lelek has made her home with Dr. and Mrs. Adams at 120 Telegraph street, where she was not residing in the country near Los Gatos. She is a beautiful and accomplished girl. Since her graduation from Ford Seminary, Miss Adams has been in the West, and she has been in the city for some time.

The engagement was announced at a luncheon given by Mrs. Allen H. Baker, at her home, 1235 Webster street, in honor of Miss Elizabeth Lelek. The wedding will take place in the near future.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

Mrs. Walter Starr and Miss Florence Starr will spend August at Tahoe. Mrs. King and Miss Lucy King also go to Tahoe for the autumn.

At Rubicon Springs, on Lake Tahoe, are Miss Blake and Mrs. Beach Soule.

Mrs. Charles Butt, who was formerly Miss Ethel Cohen, has been spending some weeks with her mother in Alameda. She will go to San Francisco shortly, where she will spend the coming season.

At Highland Springs are Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Kenna, and her daughters, Isabella and Ada Kenna. Miss Charlotte Elvey has also been at Highland Springs. But is now with the Lunnings in their camp near Cloverdale.

At Vichy Springs are Mrs. J. L. N. Shepard and Miss Evelyn Shepard.

Mrs. G. B. Cook and Miss Butters are also there. Miss Cook looks very like her pretty sister, Mrs. R. Augustus Bray.

Wallace Everson is at Paradise Springs, where he will spend some days.

FUTURE A MYSTERY NO LONGER

To the young man starting a business career.

To the man with interests in stocks and bonds.

To the professional man, the lawyer or the physician.

To the miner, the prospector or the owner of mines.

To the woman whose heart has been torn and is sore.

To those afflicted or in trouble.

To those who doubt or have questions to ask of the unknown.

Would a sight into the future, a knowledge of what will be to-morrow, next week, next month or next year help you? Would not the preparation of this time with the assurance of the happening, give you the power to grasp the opportunity, turn the possibility into a fact, take the tide at the turn?

Fortune knocks but once at a man's door. Frequently the man never knows; more frequently he knows too late. The opportunity comes and passes and the man does not see. His chance has gone.

One sight into the future would have changed all this. One consultation with the seeress who reveals the unknown, who reads the unopened book of the future as the history of the past is read, whose knowledge in that much exceeds the powers of ordinary mortals; one question, perhaps, asked of

ISMAR, THE EGYPTIAN

Would have made fortune from opportunity.

The most matter of fact man, the rather at superstition, has come to a realization that there is something more than his mind can grasp in the deep subtleties of second sight. He has seen the strange phenomena of the occult become the subject of study by scientists of world-wide fame; he has seen the physician of modern learning bow his head in honor to the Swamis of the Indus. Disbelief has given way to doubt and doubt to certainty. Second sight, prophecy, call it by what name you will, is a fact of science and is greeted as such by the men of learning.

There is no deeper occultism than that of the Egyptians. Their knowledge of the future has been cause for centuries of discussion. Among the seeresses of the country of the Nile none is more revered in her own country than Ismar.

Reared almost in the shadows of the great Pyramids, underneath the frowning visage of the Sphinx, she grew to womanhood with the mysteries of the world pushing their way into her very life. To her the Sphinx gave answer to the riddle of the world, the Pyramids revealed their secrets. The knowledge of the Priests of the Temples, the learning of the papyrus inscriptions were all for her. She became higher in caste than her instructors and surprised even the Priests of Cairo with her knowledge of the occult.

Since the advent of Ismar in San Francisco, three years ago, she has lightened thousands of hearts, aided thousands in business ventures. That she has made good the claims for absolute knowledge of future events set forth, she has testimonials to show. These are bona fide and uncollected.

It is not every one who cares to give his or her name for publication in testimonials. That so many have done so for Ismar is a great achievement. Here-with are presented the statements of a few of those who have been helped by the Egyptian seeress.

The Vail Torn Away; Prophecy; a business opportunity and the chance for fortune...

These Testimonials Are the Best Evidence of Ismar's Psychic Power:
"I have known Ismar for the past two years, and have consulted her in all my business affairs. I took her advice and succeeded. I found her words positively reliable. Her every warning was truthful and every prediction she made came true. If anybody doubts this statement, write to me at Pacific Grove, California."
J. P. FISHER."

The following letter is self-explanatory:
Dear Ismar: On May 6th you told me I would marry before the end of July. I had no thought of marrying then, and the statement startled me. Your description of the man I was destined to marry was wonderfully accurate. I was married yesterday, and Fred is wealthy, as you told me my husband would be. Yours gratefully,
MATTIE V. VERNOUTH.

The following letter was received last week:
Dawson City, July 4, 1902.
Madam Ismar: What you told me about the mine is absolutely true. We found the ledge again by following your instructions, and it is richer than even. Both myself and partner feel very grateful to you, for we had given up all hope when I called upon you last year. We didn't get to work again until about three weeks ago. Thankfully yours,
ISAAC N. CALKINS.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness It Would Bring to Oakland Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.
Hours of misery at leisure or at work.
If women only knew the cause.
Backache pains come from sick kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure sick kidneys.

Oakland people endorse this.
Mrs. I. Stewart, Model Confectionery and Bakery, 857 San Pablo avenue, says: "If all troubled with pain in the back could have it ended as quickly and as thoroughly as Doan's Kidney Pills procured at the Owl Drug Co.'s store ended mine, then that far too prevalent annoyance would cease to have any terrors for ladies who will take a course of the treatment with this strengthening and curative remedy. When I read about Doan's Kidney Pills in our papers I was sadly in need of something for an attack of backache just like many of its predecessors. The treatment acted just as stated and relief followed in a surprisingly short space of time."

COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION.

AN INTERESTING MEETING HELD AT THE SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE.

After a lively contest, P. M. Fisher was this morning elected chairman of the County Board of Education by a vote of 3 to 2. It required four ballots to decide the election. Those who voted in the minority on the final ballot were Directors Petray and Elston. Fisher was elected on the votes of Crawford, Dr. John Gamble and his own ballot.

The election is a victory for the Crawford-Fisher wing of the Board. H. C. Petray, who has been president of the Board during the last two years, declined to be nominated to succeed himself. This left as candidates only P. M. Fisher, Dr. Gamble and A. M. Elston, Superintendent Crawford being barred on account of his being ex-officio secretary of the Board.

On motion of Superintendent Crawford, ballots were cast without nominations being made. On the first ballot Fisher received only one vote, Gamble and Elston receiving two. In the second ballot Fisher and Gamble each received two votes and Elston received one. On the third ballot the vote remained the same. Had Dr. Gamble voted for himself in any of the first three ballots, he would have been elected.

On the fourth ballot Gamble transferred his vote from Elston to Fisher, and the latter was elected. Gamble and Elston each received one vote on the last ballot.

At the previous meeting of the Board the supporters of Dr. Gamble had framed a motion for his election. Crawford, however, insisted upon deferring the election until the return of P. M. Fisher, who was then on his vacation.

After the election certificates to teach were granted as follows:
High school—Rose Hahfeld, Florence V. Brainerd and Mary M. Phelps.
Grammar grade—Elsie H. Gunn, Elizabeth McCall, Beulah L. Day, Elizabeth L. Whelan and Miss Stiel.
Miss Louise Hawkins was granted a renewal of her certificate to teach Latin.

W. B. HAMILTON IS DISBURSING AGENT.

William B. Hamilton, Special Deputy Collector of the port, has been appointed disbursing agent of the Custom House by Collector Stratton. The office is important, as all moneys disbursed for the service in this district pass through his hands. The position has been held by Cress Unger, the chief clerk, but as the collector leaves for the East next month it is desirable that all these matters shall be left to Mr. Hamilton, who will act as Collector during Mr. Stratton's absence.

WILL SETTLE AN INJUNCTION.

WILL BE ABLE TO DISPOSE OF CROPS AND REALIZE MONEY.

An amicable settlement having been agreed upon, the injunction suit recently begun by Charles D. Allen, as receiver, against Frank Garcia and sons, Louis Garcia and Henry Garcia, and A. J. Amoral, was dismissed today by stipulation, the plaintiff and defendants each to pay their own costs.

The action was brought to restrain the defendants from disposing of the crops raised this season on 2000 acres of land in Contra Costa County that was recently foreclosed by Thomas A. E. Varney, as surviving trustee of the estate of his late uncle, Thomas Varney. The foreclosure amounted to about $117,000. Allen was appointed receiver in the foreclosure action to take charge of the property.

The injunction proceedings were begun about two weeks ago. Allen alleged that the defendants were conspiring to cheat and defraud him, as receiver, of his share of the crops, and that he was not permitted to take charge of the property or even inspect the weighing of the grain. Upon Allen's petition Judge Ellsworth issued a restraining order prohibiting the defendants from moving any of the crops from the premises pending the action, and issued an order for them to show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent.

The suit was now compromised. A. J. Amoral, who is leasing part of the property from Frank Garcia, agrees to allow Allen to have one-fourth of the crops raised by him, Allen to provide his own sacks. The two sons, Louis and Henry Garcia, agree to allow Allen to have one-fifth of the crops raised by them.

A motion for a new trial in the foreclosure action is now pending. By the decree Frank Garcia is bereft in his old age of all of his possessions, even his home at Hayward. At one time he owned vast tracts of land in Alameda and Contra Costa counties. A loan of $50,000 contracted from Thomas Varney many years ago was the entering wedge that finally separated him from his property and leaves him almost a pauper in his declining years. He has reared a family of eleven children.

ALL IS QUIET IN THE SHENANDOAH REGION

SHENANDOAH, Pa., Aug. 16.—Shenandoah, after a night of excitement, is again quiet. After midnight the streets were clear. The quick march of the troops into the foreign quarter where the disturbances occurred opened the eyes of the people and they now feel that the soldiers will be able to quell any disturbances. The raiding of farms by strikers continues. On an appeal by the farmers the Brigadier General today sent the Government troops on a march through that region.

HOW THE NEW PRIMARY LAW WORKED AT THE ELECTION.

Gubernatorial Contest Seems to be Mixed Up—Other Fights in the State—Political Gossip.

BY GEORGE F. HATTON.

(Special to the TRIBUNE.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—And now there is a faction of the Republican party calling the new primary law vicious and saying that it is worse than the old-time method. It is not hard to guess where this will come from—it is emitted by those who say that the Democrats of Los Angeles and San Francisco played a leading part in carrying the Republican primaries.

When it comes to talking remedy, though, those who seek to reform the reform measure are somewhat at sea. They admit that it would not do to have the Democratic primaries set for some other day, for, in the first place, little if nothing would be accomplished from the standpoint of keeping Democratic votes out of the Republican boxes and then again it would mean such an entanglement of the primary measure that it might as well be repealed altogether.

Some are prone to say that the test should be changed. Asking a man if it is his present intention to support the Republican nominees amounts to nothing, for a Democrat desiring to see a certain Republican put up for nomination could conscientiously say that he was going to support him—that is, to the extent of getting him before the people and there let him run the gauntlet with the Democratic nominees. Constitutional objections stand in the way of other plans of relief proposed under the lines of compelling a primary applicant to swear absolutely that he would vote for a certain nominee, for freedom of thought comes ahead of freedom of speech and it would be impossible to deny the right of a citizen to change his opinion upon any certain proposition.

About the most rational change that has been suggested to date is as follows:

First—The argument lays the foundation that a Republican primary election is merely a party gathering, a sort of family assemblage where the Republicans decide between themselves what candidates they will put to the front as standard-bearers. In this party conference it is urged that no one but Republicans should participate and it is proposed to make the test "Did you vote the Republican ticket at the last election?" If the applicant responds in the affirmative then he is to be permitted to vote the party primary; otherwise not.

The effect of the argument that this would shut out all party converts, it is urged that the applicant would have the privilege of voting the Republican ticket on election day and thereby become eligible for the next primary. In other words the convert to Republicanism would not possess the right to participate in the make-up of the party ticket until he had first qualified himself by joining the ranks through the medium of an election day ballot box.

Such a system it is argued would clear the atmosphere very considerably, for individuals would not be inclined to run chances of being converted of party merely to vote at a primary election. Whether this particular plan is urged or not it is more than likely that an attempt will be made to amend the primary law at the next session of the Legislature, some going even to the extent of advocating its repeal altogether rather than a continuance in its present form.

It is going to prove impossible though to get a primary law that will suit everyone, for half a dozen other States have grappled the problem year in and year out and have never succeeded in reaching a satisfactory conclusion. What satisfies the boss element is objected to by the reformers and vice versa and as the Supreme Court has always shown a disposition to handle primary legislation very gingerly, the indications are that the present law is about as good a measure as will be secured for a long time to come.

Wednesday's Work.

As to the results of last Wednesday's primary. Well, the daily newspapers tell the tale about as graphically as it can be presented. When all is said and done the situation can be summed up as being about as complicated as ever, for despite the belief that obtained before the primary was held, that it would virtually clear up the situation, the tangles are about as pronounced as ever.

Matters cannot be otherwise with each of the four candidates loudly proclaiming that he is satisfied with the result. Gage says that the strength he secured in San Francisco, Sacramento and Los Angeles added to his following in other places absolutely assures him the nomination. Flint shows by combination of anti-Gage figures that the Governor cannot possibly win and that he, being in the lead of all other candidates, becomes logically the man to whom all the strength will turn. Forde is so pleased with the reports he has received from throughout the State that he does not see how it will be possible for the Gage vote to keep from disintegrating in which event the support he says he would receive both from that source and the anti-Gage element would be more than enough to place the crown upon his head, while Edison points happily to the delegates who have already declared for him and tells how, in the deadlock that he believes will ensue, he will become the strongest man owing to non-entanglements with the various factions he is the only one they can all agree upon.

Some of the "dark horses" too are just as satisfied with what has occurred, for they believe that the only way to bring order out of chaos will be to trot out a new man to whom all can rally, so taking one consideration with another it can be seen that the famous Chinese puzzle is as child's play compared with efforts to straighten out the Republican situation. There are pronounced indications too that this uncertainty will continue right into the State Convention, for it is impossible to convince any of the four candidates that things are not coming their respective ways and each one firmly believes that he is the individual who will be proclaimed victor on the 25th.

What Candidates Say.

This "glorious uncertainty" is mighty hard on the other candidates for places on the State ticket for they do not know which way to turn—Gage or anti-Gage. Alluring voices are calling them from both camps and as each presents a convincing argument as to why there should be an immediate response it takes all the diplomacy in a candidate's make-up to dodge the dangers with which he is beset just now. The result is, that although the State Convention is only nine days distant it is almost impossible at this time to pick out any part of the ticket likely to be selected.

Eliminating the gubernatorial contest, a glance at the Supreme Court's situation shows just what obstacles are in the path of the individual essaying a line upon the situation. For the Chief Justice, Beatty has absolutely made no move. He is a candidate, yes, but beyond that he has left himself "in the hands of his friends." Unless enough individual strength voluntarily gathers for him in the State Convention or unless the party organization can give him enough of votes to almost control the nomination it is hard to see where Beatty can be figured to win. Yet that he is one of the strongest men in the Republican party is unquestioned and there are many who think that the Convention will rally to him on that score alone.

On the other hand, what is to be done with all the hard work Garoutte has been doing for the last year and a half. Those who have been around the State and are in touch with what is going on know beyond all question that he has concentrated a great many delegate votes on his own individual fight and that regardless of gubernatorial and other contest those who are allied to him will stand by his cause in preference to everything else that will come up. Garoutte is very sanguine as to the result and as his judgment is good and is based upon specific knowledge rather than generalities there are many good reasons to follow his way of thinking.

For the Associate Justiceship, Angelotti of Marin thinks the pathway is clearer for him than for any other candidate so far named. He is the only applicant for associate honors who has brought in a State delegation to make his fight, and as in addition to his support in Marin he has been reaching out north, south, east and west, he sees no reason why his long-cherished ambition should not be satisfied this year. For a time it looked as if his most serious opponent in this part of the State would be Judge Lorigan of San Jose, but there seems to be no indication that events will be no pronounced from that quarter.

But while no other delegation is in the field merely for the purpose of making a judicial fight, as is the case with Marin and Angelotti, Shasta county comes mighty near it, for although it was given out some time ago that Judge Edward Sweeney was no longer seeking the nomination, the residents of his home section are evidently determined to secure it for him if they can, and their delegation has been instructed to line up with that object in view. Sweeney has of late years been regarded as a logical Supreme Court candidate from the northern end of the State, and there is little doubt if an opportunity occurs, the Shasta delegates will seize it and urge his nomination as a concession to the north.

Judge Ellison of Tehama must also be figured on when these northern candidates are being discussed, for although he is making no effort in that direction, everyone knows that "Barkis is willing" and should he see an avenue to the Supreme bench, he and his friends will gladly avail themselves of it.

Present Justice Harrison, too, must not be forgotten. He is the leading authority on street law in the State, and as he has handled all the abstruse problems of that nature for the Supreme bench since the retirement of Justice De Haven, who also had a hobby in that direction, it is possible that a lot of legal influence will be exerted for him in the last few days. It is generally understood that Attorney Pillsbury is Harrison's political champion, which unquestionably means a lot of potent work.

Then there are Superior Court Judges Cook and Hebbard of San Francisco. They are both avowed candidates for the nomination and each is hopeful of getting so pronounced a support from the metropolitan delegation as to become a strong factor in the convention. Cook and Hebbard have practically confined their efforts to their own county, but they seem satisfied with the way matters stand there.

In the South.

For the Southern Justice there is still no way of working out the situation. The other side of Tehachapi absolutely insists upon having another representative on the Supreme bench, and it is freely admitted that that section is entitled to it. But where is the nominee to come from, that's the question.

Naturally, the eyes are turned to Judge Lurien Shaw of Los Angeles, for it is not only known that he would like to be on the Supreme Bench but he is furthermore conceded to be the representative Republican judge of Los Angeles county and for that matter, of the South. But with Gage of Los Angeles, a candidate for Governor how can Shaw of the same place ask for recognition for the judiciary. The situation becomes the more complicated too when it is remembered that those who are figuring on a convention program are arranging to dispose of the Justices before the State ticket and in that manner get them as far away from practical politics as possible. How with such a system, could Shaw therefore be nominated, especially so, when it is stated that as far as is known, not a delegate pledged to his interests has been returned from Los Angeles county.

Looking over the rest of the southern counties fails to relieve the situation. Orange county is a new county and the present Judge Ballard has just been defeated for renomination—there can, in consequence, be no candidate from there. In Riverside, Judge Noyes would like to get into the fight but it does not seem possible that he can, for the delegation from that county is made up solely in the interest of Captain Daniels for Congress and not one vote in it can be commanded for any other purpose at this time.

San Diego county is practically without material for a Supreme Court fight, for Judge Torrance who leads the bench there was given the nomination, a few years ago and was beaten by Temple. He therefore could not well come up again and San Diego county therefore seems shut out from consideration.

In San Bernardino, Judge Frank Oster may perhaps be regarded as a possibility though, as in the case of Riverside, the delegation from his home county is entirely made up on other lines. County Assessor Kendall is aspirant for the State Board of Equalization and typically named the entire delegation so it can be seen that Oster cannot figure on its support as long as Kendall remains a candidate.

Under these conditions it would not be surprising if the Convention gives all three of the Supreme Court nominations to the north and in response to a protest from the south, the delegates can call on that section to trot out its candidate before complaining. Up to date it has not done so nor are there any present indications that one will put in an appearance.

The Other Fights.

The candidacies for other places on the State ticket can be summarized as follows:

Lieutenant Governor—Alden Anderson of Suisun.

Secretary of State—Charles F. Curry of San Francisco, Leon Jones of San Francisco, Major J. W. Dias of Los Angeles, Frank Brandon of San Jose, Charles Bell of Los Angeles.

Treasurer—Truman Reeves of San Bernardino, Robert Nixon of Siskiyou, Attorney-General—C. S. Webb of Sierra county, D. E. McKinlay of Santa Rosa, Arthur G. Flisk of San Francisco, O. L. Everetts of Fresno, Frank McGowan of San Francisco, John P. Davis of Amador, Judge Bahrs of San Francisco, C. N. Post of Sacramento.

Surveyor General—Victor Woods of San Luis Obispo, J. W. Kaerth of Colusa, Frank Wright of Sacramento.

Clerk of Supreme Court—Frank Jordan of Oakland, A. N. Johnson of San Francisco, William Reynolds of San Francisco, W. D. Shearer of Los Angeles, Tucker of Fresno, Oscar Telle, Louis Jackson, Joe Goddard and Max Washauer, all of San Francisco.

Superintendent of Public Instruction—Thomas J. Kirk of Fresno, J. P. Greeley of Santa Ana, E. M. Rutherford of Truckee, A. C. Barker of Eureka, J. W. Linscott of Santa Cruz.

State Printer—Al Johnston of Sacramento, W. W. Shannon of San Francisco, J. F. Curry of San Francisco, T. C. Mastellar of San Francisco.

MUST SUE WIDOW TO GET MONEY

The fight over the life insurance policy of the late Captain Archibald R. Miller, formerly master of the steamer Berkeley, amounting to $2,000, took a new turn this morning under a ruling of Judge Ellsworth in the Superior Court.

The claimant is Dr. A. J. Powell of Hayward, who says the money belongs to him because of funds loaned to Miller before his death. To secure the money, Powell brought suit against the Central and Southern Pacific Employees' Mutual Benefit Association, in which the deceased held a policy of the amount specified.

Under Judge Ellsworth's order, Powell will now have to proceed against the widow and minor children of the deceased, as advised by E. K. Strobbridge of Hayward, the administrator of Captain Miller's estate.

The order was issued at the request of the beneficiary association, referred to, which, through its president, E. Black Ryan, made a showing to the effect that it did not see why it should be made the defendant in the suit. It knew of a misunderstanding between the widow, minors, administrator of the estate and Powell, but took no interest in it. It was ready to pay the money into the court and have the court decide as to which claimant was entitled to it. It asked, therefore, that the widow, the minor children and the administrator of the Miller estate be appointed parties defendant and the request was granted.

Attorney Pounds, who appeared for the beneficiary company, then demanded that the court appoint the hands of the county clerk, took his receipt for the same and thus left widow and children of the old navigator to battle for their money.

KIND WORDS FOR DR. GEO. C. PARDEE

The delegation to the Republican State Convention from Alameda county will be led by George C. Pardee for Governor. He seems to be the most available candidate now contending for the Republican nomination.

His own political family in his own home county is united in his support and the delegation has been given to him without any reservation whatever. His campaign has been conducted in the open and in a manner which has aroused no personal antagonism from rival claimants for the prize. With the supporters of every other applicant he is second choice. Other delegations can flock to his standard with confidence in his ability to win out on election day. His nomination would give unbounded satisfaction to the people of Alameda county and would unite all party factions. No man in the Republican party in this State now contending for gubernatorial honors can give greater strength to the ticket than George C. Pardee, and it would be safe, wise and expedient to nominate him at Sacramento as the Republican candidate for Governor.—Elmhurst Review.

HE WAS STABBED WHILE RUNNING.

Herbert Delancy, a young insurance man of San Francisco, who resides at 724 Twenty-first street, stabbed himself yesterday morning, but not with suicidal intent. He had an open pen-knife in his hand and was running to overtake a train. His arms swung back and forth with the motion of his body, and in one of the swings of the right hand of which contained the knife, the sharp blade struck the left arm above the elbow, inflicting a painful wound. The knife was recovered by Warden Page at the Receiving Hospital.

RAILROAD NEWS GATHERED AT YARDS IN WEST OAKLAND

Thirty Vessels Lie Idle Peculiar Phenomena Personal Doings of the Because of the Use Manifested by Berkeley's Propellers. of Fuel Oil. Past Week.

There is lying in the bay in the way of ships without charters, fully $3,000,000 worth of capital that has been forced into idleness owing to the use of oil as fuel.

Between thirty and thirty-five vessels are now lying in the bay anxiously awaiting cargoes. Some of the boats have in their holds just sufficient ballast to keep them in an upright position and others retain just enough coal in their holds to serve a sufficient. This inactivity is a phenomenon of the ships was primarily brought about by the railroads, street car lines and large manufacturing using oil as fuel and discarding coal. Heretofore it has been found profitable to bring cargoes of coal into port and in event of not obtaining a charter, to return for more coal. The vessels were always sure of obtaining a cargo at Nantiamo, Japan or Australia, when the exports from San Francisco were slack, but since the introduction of oil, the coal importations have fallen off over a hundred percent and the freight rates have been so low that the freight rates have fallen so low that the ship owners prefer to have their vessels idle, ride the becalmed waters of the bay in preference to taking a chance at obtaining valuable cargoes in foreign ports.

GRAIN HANDLERS BENEFITED. One of the benefits which will at least be temporary is that grain exporters of California can obtain low rates to Europe. The vessels engaged in carrying grain to Europe, which were formerly sent to Europe, as their coal trade is gone, there is only one source of revenue left and that is the grain trade. Here again keen competition has been started and a low freight rate on grain to European ports may be had.

This benefit to California grain handlers will probably only be temporary, as the unchartered vessels will probably drift to other parts of the world in search of cargoes, and relieve the market of the brisk competition. Freight rates will not receive an upward impetus for some time, however, for the displacement of coal will be a gradual process. It will take at least two years yet for the large corporations and a longer period for the smaller ones to rely upon oil entirely, as fuel. The Southern Pacific Company and the Santa Fe have not quite reached the half way point and will continue to import coal. The process of gradually decreasing the coal importations will have the effect of throwing vessels out of the coal trade for the next two years. The displaced vessels will then have to compete for cargoes with the vessels which have been able to bank on low freight rates to Europe for at least a period of two years.

This week the ship Alex. Gibson, Master and Bertha have been taken off the Oriental run and will wait for a cargo of grain.

This makes ten vessels usually discharging at Long Wharf, which are now waiting for a commission so far as the Pacific Coast trade is concerned, in the last month.

REACTION POSSIBLE. There is a reaction possible from the present conditions of affairs which may cost the grain handlers all the profits accruing from the present low rates. When the ships have left for other parts of the world, there will be a scarcity of grain carrying vessels and the grain handlers will probably have to bid as lively for ships as the ship owners are now bidding for cargoes. In event of this condition becoming a reality, the profits the grain handlers are receiving through the present low rates will soon melt away.

BUSINESS OF THE WEEK. The business for the week at Long Wharf has been composed almost entirely of lumber. This commodity has been virtually shut out of the harbor in vast quantities and is taxing the capacity of the Southern Pacific Company to handle it. Over twenty lumber-laden vessels have been docked at the wharf this week.

Coal showed some flickering activity. Sugar was quiet, but will be active next week.

NEWARK'S MAIDEN TRIP WITH KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS. The recently remodeled ferry steamer Newark made her maiden trip since being rebuilt, on Thursday last, with 1600 Knights of Pythias aboard. Besides being considered the handsomest ferry in the service of the company, Newark has sustained her reputation of being the swiftest boat on the bay waters.

The new engines and boilers worked like a charm, and there was never a hitch in the oil-feeding apparatus. She steamed into the bay without hardly a puff of smoke and not a clatter flying. An extra spur was made to the going to San Francisco, and the huge ferry ploughed through the waters at a speed which made it evident that she could show a foamy pair of heels to the fastest craft in the bay.

To Superintendent McKenzie and his able assistants is due the credit for the new oil-burning ferry and her fine department on her maiden trip. Those who saw the 1600 Knights file aboard say that they were lost in the commodious passenger saloon. The system of seating the passengers, and the accommodations generally have been so arranged that the Newark is now the most spacious and comfortable of all the ferries.

The Newark to-day took several thousand sight-seers on a voyage around the bay. The company will soon be given a chance to test the qualities of the new steamer, as she will be put on the broad gauge run some time next month.

NEW ENGINE DRIVER PRESS HAS ARRIVED. The new engine press with a pressure of 500,000 pounds, has arrived from the East and is being set up in the machine shops under the direction of Foreman Robert Yates.

The machine is used for taking the axle out of the drive wheels of the locomotive when being repaired, and a pressure of a half million pounds is used in the operation.

The steel axle is forced from the wheel by the powerful pressure, which is generated through a system of hydraulic cylinders. The machine will mean much economy in the matter of time to the company.

WATER EATS STEEL BLADES OF STEAMER BERKELEY.

The blades of the steamers propellers have been destroyed by the action of chemical or physical the mechanical experts of the Southern Pacific Company are unable to say.

When the Berkeley was first fitted out, the blades of the propellers were made of a metal composition of which brass was the principal ingredient.

In a few months, however, not only were the blades of the propeller destroyed, but the plates along the bottom of the vessel were found to have been eaten away by the acid formed from the metal composite.

To do away with this danger steel plates were substituted, as were also steel propellers. The ravages of the water were checked by this partially, but an examination a few days ago revealed that the steel propellers had been eaten away. As steel is practically considered non-assailable by the action of salt water, the phenomena is extending to the amount of interest among the shipbuilders.

The Berkeley will be taken to Boole's shipyard next month, where she will be overhauled and new propellers substituted for the old ones.

The bottom of the vessel will be scraped and painted and the engines put in shape for inspection.

FILL HAS BEEN LEVELED AND THREE TRACKS LAID.

The contractors have finished the work of leveling the twelve acre reclaimed by the Southern Pacific Company, and three new tracks laid the entire extent of the newly-made land. These new tracks will form the nucleus of a great system of the freight yards in that direction.

Two of the tracks are already serving the purpose of main line switches. The company has found the new tracks of great service in handling the cars used by the Knights of Pythias. By the improvement made it will be possible to handle a couple of thousand cars more than heretofore.

WILL WORK NIGHT AND OGDEN CUT-OFF.

On Tuesday last twenty-four machines left for Ogden, where the steamer Promontory is to be put to gether.

The boat is to be fitted up with electric lights to permit of the work of building the pier across Salt Lake to be rushed night and day.

Two large electric lights will be placed forward and two ares will be placed aft.

The electricity will be generated by a dynamo which has already been shipped from San Francisco.

The boat will be fitted up with eighty electric lights in all. Superintendent McKenzie is already on the ground.

PACIFIC COAST CLUB MEETS THIS EVENING.

The Pacific Coast Railway Club will hold its regular meeting this evening at the Palace Hotel. The session will begin at 8 o'clock.

A paper of more than ordinary interest will be read on "The Superintendent, the Conductor and the Engine Men." This paper will discuss the financial, moral amount of interest, as it deals with the relations of the three departments in a very comprehensive manner. Other questions of much importance will be considered.

STEAMER OAKLAND WILL BE LAID UP FOR REPAIRS.

The ferry steamer Oakland will be laid up for repairs at the end of this month and be put in condition for the State inspectors. The Bay City has already been repaired and will be put on the narrow gauge run in place of the Oakland.

The company has loaned the North Pacific Railroad Company the use of the steamer Amador while the Tamalpais is being repaired.

THE MARINE WAYS HAVE BEEN ENLARGED.

The marine ways have been enlarged and are now able to take on the largest steamers the company owns. The Solano, which is 420 feet long, can easily be accommodated now with a little to spare on either end.

The ways have been widened by forty feet to permit the men to work on the dry ground on the sea-side of the ways.

At present there are half a dozen barges being repaired under the direction of Superintendent Bruce and Foreman Williams.

INTERESTING BRIEFS FROM LONG WHARF.

The following lumber vessels have discharged cargoes at Long Wharf during the week: Barkentine Katie Flickinger; steamers Scotia, Whitesborough, Phoenix, Dispatch, San Pedro; schooners Sonja Christensen, F. W. Jewett, Alliance, Alton River, Brunswick and Wahu-kana.

The ship Osbourne has finished discharging a cargo of 6,000 tons of Australian coal.

The American ship J. B. Prow is discharging coal.

Several ships are due from Honolulu with sugar.

IMPROVEMENTS BEING CARRIED ON BY THE COMPANY.

The 55,000 barrel steel tank for the storage of oil at Stockton has been completed.

The Decoto station has been completed and the erection of the East Oakland will be commenced by the carpenters immediately.

Three men are at work on the new oil tank for the yards.

The new commissary building has been completely furnished and is now in full running order.

PERSONAL MENTION OF THE RAILROAD MEN.

P. I. Ramsey has returned from Port Costa, where he has been supervising the discharging of 3,000 tons of coal from the British ship Earl of Dunmore.

Operator C. M. Fisher has been transferred to the pier. He was relieved by Operator O. A. Turner.

William Mahan, comptroller of the Southern Pacific Company, with offices in New York, arrived this week in his private car and is in consultation with the heads of the company in San Francisco.

Erastus Young, general auditor of the Union Pacific, is also among the railway men to visit the Pacific Coast this week.

H. W. Ball, chief clerk of the motive power department, and T. T. Klink, general auditor of the Southern Pacific Company, left for Los Angeles in their private car on Friday last.

W. F. Herrin, who late visit to Sacramento, was much concerned in political circles, has left on a brief visit to Lake Tahoe.

W. R. Martin, superintendent of the Atlantic system of the Southern Pacific Company, arrived this week in his private car.

A. M. Barrett of the freight car shops is laying off on account of injuries.

S. A. Decker of the car repairing department is also taking a lay-off.

E. T. Putney of the carpenter department is reported to be ill.

S. Simmons of the car department is taking a vacation of a couple of weeks.

A. Trombly and family have left on a visit to Sacramento, where they are to be entertained by friends.

Mrs. Lloyd Tevis has left for Truckee in her private car San Emidio.

Harry Conners and C. Cooper of the machine shops have returned from Shasta.

Machinist Albert Lightner has returned to work after a vacation spent in the Shasta county mountains.

Thomas Moore of the blacksmith department has returned from his vacation.

Machinist E. M. Pelton was granted a leave of absence to participate in the competitive drill of the Oakland Commandery of the Knights of Pythias. This company secured second prize.

Charles Millener of the machine shops participated in the Oakland parade of the Pythians. He is a member of one of the local bands.

Foreman Eckland has returned from Lake Tahoe, where he spent his vacation.

Machinists S. Lundson and James Dolan have returned from a vacation.

Machinist Joseph Stevens is reported on the sick list.

Robert Kennedy of the machine shops has undergone an operation for his eyes.

Thomas Burr of the ship building department has left for his old home in Vermont.

H. H. Jones of the mills is contemplating a trip to Utah.

MELBOURNE M'DOWELL IS COMING TO DEWEY THEATER.

The Great Actor, Supported by Florence Stone, Opens Monday Next in La Tosca---Fine Attractions Elsewhere.

Next week, at the Dewey Theater, the people of this city will have an opportunity of witnessing a marvelous production of "La Tosca." This is all the more remarkable, when it is announced that this great play by Sardou will be presented with the great actor Melbourne M'Dowell and the tragedienne Florence Stone in the leading roles.

Manager Stevens has given the patrons of the theater in this city a number of fine attractions, but he has given nothing like that which he promises for next week. Melbourne M'Dowell is the man who, with his late wife, Fanny Davidson, made Sardou popular in this country. He it was who impersonated the noble roles in that author's stirring plays while those of the heroines were interpreted by the late Miss Davidson.

Mr. M'Dowell is now assisted in the production of these plays by Miss Stone, an actress upon whom the people of Miss Davidson have fallen, and who is recognized as one of the greatest histrions of the day.

This last stroke of enterprise on the part of Manager Stevens has had a stirring effect upon all classes who live, the lover, Mario, is tortured in the sight and hearing of La Tosca until she can bear the agony no longer and points out the hiding place of the fugitive, who is dragged forth dead, killed by his own hand.

Mario is condemned to death for his part in helping the fugitive to escape. The prefect of police, Le Baron Scarpia, offers to save him at the price of the honor of La Tosca. She is driven to a mock assent, and having secured, as she thinks, the safety of her lover, strikes the baron to the heart with her dagger. Then she goes to cheer her lover, with the news of the escape which has been contrived. The soldiers who are to fire upon him are supposed by La Tosca, in accordance with the director of the plot, to fire blank cartridges. But the baron has cheated her with the pretense and she sees her lover fall, learning too late that the musketeers were loaded to kill. Then, in frenzy, she denounces the vile trickster whom she has stabbed, confesses her act and falls across the body of her dead lover, maddled with the shots from the guns of soldiers.

The play is handsomely mounted and will undoubtedly be one of the best of the season's offerings.

Mr. M'Dowell and Miss Stone will have the support of the augmented Stevens' Stock Co., including Landers Stevens, Irvine Blunkell, E. R. Roberts, Will R. Wadling, Carl Birch, sette, the first who steals the heart of the painter.

THE COUNTRY GIRL AT THE ALCAZAR.

Florence Roberts will play "Sapho" for the last time Sunday evening at the Alcazar. She has repeated her great triumph and at every performance the theater has been crowded to the doors and numbers have been unable to gain admission. Monday evening, and next week only, in response to a general request, Mycherly's famous comedy, "The Country Girl," will be received with Miss Roberts as Peggy Thrift. Her magnificent success in this character last season is well remembered. It won the unanimous praise of the press and public, and stamped her as a high comedienne. The cast will be the best ever got together for the play. White Whittlesley will again appear as Dick Belville. Seats for it will be on sale Monday at the box office.

LAST OPERA BY THE TIVOLI COMPANY TONIGHT.

Tonight the engagement of the Tivoli Opera Company, which has extended over the past two weeks, comes to a close at the Macdonough Theater.

The opera for this evening will be the "Serenade," a charming composition which was made famous by the Bostonians, and which still lives in the rendition given it by the Tivoli Company. The opera was produced for the first time here by the Tivoli Company during the present engagement last night and every chorus and aria were redemanded. The Tivoli Opera Company is the best singing organization which has sung here in many months, and ought to, as it will, have a full house at tonight's performance.

SOME MEN AND WOMEN OF NOTE ON THE STAGE.

It is quite possible that the Lyceum Theater, which was the scene of Henry Irving's triumphs as actor and manager, and has become a historic playhouse, will be pulled down in the near future. A year ago the London County Council demanded forty alterations in the theater, and the company, which now owns the building and has the exclusive right of Sir Henry Irving's services in London for five years, hesitates to go to the additional expense, and may sell the building, in which case it will probably be torn down and its site utilized for some other purpose. The Lyceum was built in 1830, and was valued a few years ago at $1,200,000.

Oliver Morosco has secured the Harrington Reynolds Stock Company for a month's engagement at the Burbank Theater, beginning August 22. The company will be an excellent one, for it will include Theodore Roberts, Ada Lewis, Eugene Thais, Lawrence, Harry Cashman and Gladys Welton, in addition to his regular company, with which he has been touring in Northwest. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is to be one of the productions, with Theodore Roberts in his wonderful impersonation of Simon Legree, the acting which brought Broadway to see the old play in its new setting at the Academy of Music in New York last year. The other plays will include "Booths" and "Sweet Lavender."

Headlin' Gailson is said to be at work on a play of Colorado life.

Augustus Thomas will continue his "state" plays next season, with "Manila."

Gertrude Coghlan will open her season in "Alice of Old Vincennes" about the middle of September.

Miss Victoria Lateman has been engaged as leading lady at the Grand Opera House, Nashville, for next season.

Maudie Brady, who will be E. S. Wilbur's leading season, is now at the head of the Elite Stock Company at Denver.

Martin Eichenbach, manager of the new season of the western "Fiddle Dee Do" Company, which will open their new season at the Burbank next month, is in the city.

The play in which Sarah Cowell Le Moyne is to be the star next season is being finished by Glen M'Donough, who announces that it will be entitled "Among Those Present." It is a story of the "Red Rover" type.

One of next season's productions in Paris that is awaited with interest is Henry Batille's dramatization of Tolstoy's powerful story, "Resurrection." It will be put on at the Gymnase, with Berthe Bely in the leading role.

Kyrle Kelley will probably not return to the United States before September 1. He will sail with his new American yacht and his automobile he is realizing about all the pleasure month has to offer, and naturally he is loath to leave it.

It is said that Maudie Odell is to compile a "Sarah Bernhardt and essay" a famous made role. The Baldwin-Melville Stock Company is to revive "Remedy and Justice" at the Grand Theater, Buffalo, and Miss Odell will be the Romeo.

Franklin Fyles's drama, "Kil Carson," will start its new season in New York City, where a part of the action is placed at a time when the historic Santa Fe Railroad terminated there, and Carson was a famous romantic hero of the frontier.

One of the productions of the coming season will be the Four Cohans in a revision of George M. Cohan's musical comedy, "The Song." The season opens at Boston, September 1, and will continue for forty-five weeks, including a southern tour and a trip to the Pacific coast.

It has been definitely announced that the Jefferson family will be well represented on the stage next season. September 1, the new season will be opened for the Jeffersons by "The Song." Joe Jefferson Jr. and William Winter Jefferson will be seen as John stars in "The Rivals," playing Rob Acres and Sir Lucius O'Trigger, respectively, in that piece. Joseph Jefferson will make his customary fall and spring tours in his well-known repertoire of plays.

Klaw & Erlanger's arrangement with N. C. Goodwin to play the role of the "Milkmaid" in "The Milkmaid's Song" is the greatest and most elaborate Shakespearean production ever seen in this country, and to that end will spend in the neighborhood of $100,000 in staging it. Mr. Goodwin will play with his wife, Maxine Elliott, next season, when Mr. Goodwin will appear as Bottom; she will make her debut as Titania. The production will be managed by Charles E. Dillingham.

MELBOURNE M'DOWELL.

marveled at the liberality he displays in presenting to the people of this city, at reasonable prices, plays and performances, which elsewhere appear only at the highest prices.

of the attractions to visit the theater this season there is none of more importance or worthy the consideration of the playgoer than the coming production of "La Tosca" by Mr. Melbourne M'Dowell and Miss Florence Stone, supported by a company equal to any that has ever shaped the play with Mr. M'Dowell. Mr. M'Dowell stands today first among the players of the continent and his dramatic and impersonation of La Tosca, Scarpia, in this play is a feature of the stage.

Miss Stone, who is co-star with Mr. M'Dowell, stands with him the honors of the play, comes with a wealth of experience, and public as a beautiful and personal beauty, and is pronounced an ideal La Tosca.

Simply told the story of "La Tosca" is, "Scarpia, the first of the first Napoleon, is a

HENRY MILLER COMING TO MACDONOUGH THEATER.

Henry Miller, the great actor, who has been playing a remarkably successful engagement for many weeks in San Francisco, and who is one of the greatest of favorites with the theatergoers of this city, will be the next attraction at the Macdonough Theater. He will come early in September and present several of the best pieces and among these undoubtedly will be "The Merchant of Venice," which is a packed house every time it is produced.

ROBERT FITZSIMMONS AT CENTRAL THEATER.

At the Central Theater, next week, there will be a rare novelty. It will be nothing more or less than the appearance of Robert Fitzsimmons in "The Honorable Blacksmith." This play has been specially adapted for the appearance of the fighting champion, and will be put upon the stage in a manner which will undoubtedly please the public. There will be great curiosity aroused to see how well the champion can act in the peaceful walks of the drama.

"SECRET SERVICE" AT THE GRAND OPERA.

At the Grand Opera House next week, there will be an elaborate production of the great play, "Secret Service," in which the Frawley Company will appear for the last time. This is a magnificent organization, and there could be expected no finer production of the piece than will be given. Popular prices will prevail.

TWO GREAT OPERAS AT TIVOLI THEATER.

For the week of August 18th the Tivoli Opera House will present two of the greatest favorites that the lyric stage has ever known, "La Boheme" and "Carmen." "La Boheme" will serve to introduce, for the first time, this season, the celebrated soprano, Lina Montauri, who originated the part of Mimì in this country. Agostini will take his great part of Rudolph, which he also created here. Every opera-goer remembers the enormous hit these artists made at a local theater four years ago, when an unheeded chorus burst upon the town in the Pompadour opera and created a genuine furor. Tina de Spada, who has endeavored herself to all her powers by her artistic work since she has been a member of the Tivoli company, will appear for the first time here as Mu-

The artist succeeds in effecting the escape and hides him in a secret place in his own country home, La Tosca, jealously suspecting that the fugitive of whom she hears is a woman, follows Mario and unconsciously leads the police to the house. She learns her error, but before she can return to the city both she and her lover are seized by the police and both refusing to reveal the hiding place of the fugi-

BIG AFFAIR AT SAN LEANDRO A BAZAAR FOR HAYWARDS.

MEMBERS OF GOLDEN WAVE CHAPTER GIVE A SHIRT WAIST PARTY.

SAN LEANDRO, Aug. 15.—Masonic Hall was the scene of an interesting and unique affair last evening when the members of Golden Wave Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, gave their shirt waist party. The hall was decorated in such a way as to give it the appearance of a garden. The walls and ceilings were decorated with palms and green decorations, among which was clustered many colored electric lights. The feature of the event, however, was the manner in which the participants were dressed. The gentlemen wore no coats, while the women wore shirt waists. The party was a success and the women are greatly pleased over the bit it made.

Dancing formed the principal amusement of the evening. Dainty refreshments were served in secluded corners, beneath large palms and evergreen branches. Golden Wave Chapter has given a number of interesting affairs, but last night's entertainment was the most elaborate ever witnessed in San Leandro.

CONGREGATIONAL WOMEN PREPARING A LARGE ENTERTAINMENT.

HAYWARDS, Aug. 16.—The women of the Trinity Aid Society of this place are arranging for an entertainment and bazaar to be given on October 30th for the purpose of raising $200 to clear the present indebtedness of the parish. It is the intention of the women in charge of the affair to have booths at which will be sold articles of clothing, refreshments and fancy work, all of which will be donated by members of the church and Aid Society. The bazaar will be opened in the morning and the entire day will be devoted to the sale of the contents of the booths. In the evening an entertainment will be given. It will consist of musical and literary numbers by the best talent that can be secured.

The various committees have already commenced preparations for the event and all donations will be received at the church.

INITIATE NEW MEMBER.

At a special meeting of Olive Branch Circle of Woodcraft held Tuesday evening, Mrs. Bradshaw was initiated into the order. Following the exercises of the evening the members spent an hour at social amusements before adjourning the meeting. The circle is rapidly increasing in number, which is very encouraging to the officers.

Topics of the Day for Women.

SPICE AND VARIETY.

Judging by a good deal of the conversation of the present day, there are a large number of people who have a positive horror of home. This curious revulsion of feeling is taken by many persons as a sign of social deterioration. For our own part we find it difficult to take it quite seriously, or to see in it anything more than a passing whim, says the London Spectator. Nobody nowadays likes monotony. Change is what people desire—not perhaps any great change, but lots of small change; not necessarily for the better, but for its own sake. Now there is a great sameness about one's own four walls, be they never so hand-some. We all feel at times an overpowering desire to look at something else. We cannot change the patterns must be mutual yielding. Is it such a shame and disgrace to an adult for a child to disobey? Should he not be ever seen to alter in expression. Again there is a terrible sameness about one's own cook. Experience enables us to foretell the taste of everything at home, from the soup to the savory if we are rich, and from the mutton to the cheese if we are poor. Whereas, if we dine at a restaurant everything is different, and the restaurant is refurnished daily with new faces. Then again, the music and stir going on around one avoid the necessity for much conversation, and conversation in the home circle is sometimes dull.

INDIVIDUALITY AND OBEDIENCE

Docility in the young indicates one of two things—lack of character in the child or a great deal of character in the guardian. When both parent and child have strong individualities there must be mutual yielding. Is it such a shame and disgrace to an adult for a child to disobey? Should he not be ever seen to alter in expression. Again there is a terrible sameness about one's own cook. Experience enables us to foretell the taste of everything at home, from the soup to the savory if we are rich, and from the mutton to the cheese if we are poor. Then again, the music and stir going on around one avoid the necessity for much conversation, and conversation in the home circle is sometimes dull.

The authority parents hold arises not from the voluntary surrender of will in the child, but from his weakness and ignorance. If they exact from him a total surrender of his will, they take advantage of his position. In fact, an immense advantage is theirs from the first moment of the child's life, or they regulate all his habits, and so form his tastes. But when that stir of individuality begins in the little one which impels him to assert himself, usually, we should not look upon him as a rebel to be punished, but as an awakening intelligence to be trained.

Many and earnest, conscientious young mother, with a heart full of love streets. The wrong way to go upstairs, according to the New York Evening Post is to lean over, contract the chest, hoop the shoulders and bend the whole body forward from the waist. The person who goes upstairs in this way will be exhausted at the top of even a short flight. Yet stair climbing properly done is considered good exercise. The head should be erect, the chest expanded, the shoulders back, with no bend whatever of the body at the waist. With this pose put the whole weight on the ball of the foot and do not touch the step with the heel, and note the springiness felt at every footfall.

CARNATIONS AND ROYALTY.

The rose is, of course, the true flower emblem of England, but the carnation not only has been used at former coronations, but its name is nothing more or less than a corruption of the word coronation itself. The old Latin name of this beautiful flower was Velutina coronaria, and whenever English sovereigns were crowned in the coronation season there was a plentiful supply of sweet, clove-scented blossoms to be seen. Another claim of the carnation is that it does not show the effects of a hot atmosphere or rough handling so quickly as a rose, and is, therefore, more suitable for wearing in crowded

WOMAN.

Woman, the gentlest of all creatures, is apt to become masterful and even tyrannical. This because she is a creature in whose composition emotion dominates, and emotion, when highly stimulated becomes passion, and passion spurs all reasonable limitation.

Walk in quietly, but without any undue and ostentatious silence. Go straight up to the bed, and speak in an everyday tone, and, without asking any tiresome questions, commence speaking of matters which you know will interest, but not irritate, the patient. Let your visit be short, and when you rise to leave the room say your "good-bye" briefly, and go at once, avoiding any of the lingering which is both annoying and wearying to the invalid.

WHEN VISITING THE SICK.

Nerves of the sick are very acute, and it is positive torture to them to see the door open silently and a figure creep in on tiptoe. No one would dream of hurrying the door open, or even turning the handle with a rattle, nausea.

STORY OF THE VOODOO DANCE FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

The following, intensely interesting description of a Voodoo Dance is taken from a copy of the New Orleans Picayune many years old. It is extremely thrilling, and withal, instructive.

WHEN HE WAS YOUNG.

When I was about 13 years old, and my friend, Capitola W., near 15, we attended an up-town public school together in the same room with us was a girl apparently white, but of African-tinted, but as she was a sweet, amiable girl, that fact was overlooked in our intercourse with her, and we even forgot that her grandmother was a witch, and fortune-teller, besides.

How the school children knew of this is more than I can tell now. I do not know that not one of us would have been brave enough to pass the witch's house at nightfall, and even in the broad light of day it was given a wide berth. We never heard the grand-daughter say one word about it, and yet we all knew that people who believed in witchcraft and thought they were injured by evil-minded neighbors, in either business or health, resorted to the old mulattress' house to purchase charms, and have her invoke maledictions on their enemies' devoted heads, thereby following out not the divine law, but one very human indeed; that is, return evil for evil.

The house in which the old woman lived alone stood by itself in the block.

It was built with one side of the house directly on the line, so there was no fence about that portion, and the second room from the corner was said to be the room in which she performed her mysterious rites and brewed her magic potions.

My friend was a bright, vivacious brunette, brimful of curiosity and filled with a reckless daring, that often was a girl apparently white, but of African-tinted, but as she was a sweet, amiable girl, that fact was overlooked in our intercourse with her, and we even forgot that her grandmother was a witch, and fortune-teller, besides.

DAY WAS WARM.

The day was one of those warm, sultry days we often have in June, when the intense heat seems to be the forerunner of the thunder storm that comes in the afternoon, and which leaves the evening delightfully cool. We reached the corner about 10 o'clock in the morning (I will not tell the name of the street, but those living in the vicinity will recognize the witch's house), and gazed in awe at the house for a little while; although my mother had taught us the folly of believing in any such thing as witches and voodooism, I must own that I felt queer thrills of apprehensive terror that caused me to shake with nervous fear and I inwardly wished myself miles away. It was not so with Capitola; her speculative mind was debating the serious question of how we were going to look in the window, for alas, we were too short to more than touch the window-ledge with our finger-tips. Her bright eyes soon singled a box, used for garbage, but now empty, a little way down the street, in front of one of the cottages in the next square. She hastily procured it and stood it up on end before the window, and we noiselessly climbed upon that. As we stood there we heard a hoarse murmur in the room, but could not see what caused it, for a thick curtain of red flannel hid the interior of the room from our view. Capitola jumped down and picked up a short thick stick, which we inserted through the blinds and moved the curtain just enough to let us see what was going on.

THE OLD WOMAN.

The old woman had no audience in the room, and was too intent upon her black art to heed anything else, so we had a good opportunity of observing the antics and evolutions she performed. The scene was so wild and uncanny that it impressed itself so vividly on my memory that I seem to have seen the old woman in the semi-darkness of the room, her costume consisted of a white gown, rather scant and short, just coming below the knees, and she wore neither shoes nor stockings, her iron-gray hair, of no great length, fell loose about her shoulders, while, for ornament or mark of power, she wore a fiery-red sash, which crossed from her left shoulder to her waist, and fell to the hem of her gown. In the middle of the room was a pan of iron set on bricks, filled with some peculiar kind of smokeless fire, that shot out green and blue flames, sometimes streaked with red; it may have been the flames of alcohol, though it did not look like that.

At a distance of about 3 feet from the pan was a circle marked on the floor in white, and perhaps 2 feet from that mark was another one in black, and we noticed that whatever she did, and danced as she might, she never overstepped either circle. When we first looked in she was slowly walking round and round the circle, muttering to herself and throwing some kind of powder, which fell on the fire with a hiss and sent out a terrible, sickening odor. After doing this several times her gyrations became more rapid and her evolutions more mazy and intricate, while the mutterings changed to chants in some unknown tongue and grew louder and louder. Suddenly she started us so that we clutched each other in fear, for with a dreadful scream she drew from the folds of her sash a serpent, which she wound around her bare neck, and there it clung, gleaming and hissing and spitting fire, as the children say. After this she drew out several frogs and threw them with outlandish cries upon the fire, where they sputtered and burned until they were consumed (they must have been dead or stupefied, as they made no effort to hop out of the fire). All this time her limbs were tireless and she still danced on, and now began leaping high into the air. Her actions now became grotesque and at last one of her flying leaps made her lose her balance and in her endeavors not to fall over either circle she looked so ridiculous that it caused Capitola to forget prudence and she laughed outright. The old woman heard her; instantly stopping her wild career the old hag darted a malignant look at us, and with a shriek of rage bounded over the circle toward us. Shall I ever forget the horror of that moment? Too paralyzed to move, we stood still, gazing at her in speechless fear, but suddenly regaining our wits, we sprang down and ran off with the speed of the wind, and never stopped until we reached Magazine street, when we slackened our headlong pace and tried to act as if nothing had happened.

Fortunately we did not meet any one who knew, so we hurried home, where we told our wonderful experience and wondered what might have happened to us if the old woman had opened the shutters before we got away.

Did we break the charm? And did her incantations fail because of our interference, were questions that were never answered. I only know that for long afterwards no money could induce me to walk past that corner, and now the old woman is dead and her grandchildren have gone west, but still I never see the weather-beaten, time-worn shanty without experiencing that old, creepy feeling and I walk by quickly, as if the old witch might catch me even yet.

REMEMBER BOYS!

Remember, boys, that you have to work, whether you handle a pick or pen, a wheelbarrow or a set of books, digging ditches or editing a paper, you must work. If you look around you will see that the men who are most able to live the rest of their days without work are the men who work the hardest. Don't be afraid of killing power to do that. Men cannot work so hard as that on the sunny side of 30. They die sometimes, but it is because they quit work at 4 and don't go home until 2 a.m. It's the interval that kills.

Work gives an appetite for meals; it lends solidity to your slumbers, it gives the appetite appreciation of a holiday. There are young men who do not work, but the world is not proud of them. It does not know even their names, it simply speaks of them as old-so-and-so's boys. Nobody likes them, nobody hates them, the great busy world doesn't even know that they are there. So find out what you want to be and do, take off your coat and make a dash in the world. The hustler you are the less mischief you get into, the sweeter will be your sleep, the brighter and happier your holidays, and the better satisfied will the world be with you.

ON HIS MIND.

"Does your husband ever quit talking about golf?" said one woman. "Yes," answered the other. "Sometimes he keeps perfectly quiet, while he is playing it."—Washington Star.

QUEER, WASN'T IT.

"I can't think," said the girl with the dimple, "what made Algy act so strangely last evening."

"Did he propose to you at any time during the evening?" asked the girl with the Maude Adams nose.

"Yes."

"Then he must have been drinking."

WORK of BRIGHT WOMEN in MANY CITIES

WOMEN AND THE BALLOT.

In my opinion, says Martha M. Ricker in the Woman's Home Companion, the paramount question concerning women today is the ballot; women have more interest in good government than men. Hard times and bad laws bear heavily upon her—more so than upon men—consequently she should be interested on all questions pertaining to government.

I said this to a woman friend of mine here in California less than a year ago, and she replied, "I have all the rights I want." At that time she had an excellent husband; he died soon after, and now she has all the troubles extant; she is simply a collection of sorrows, "hanging about" private courts in various countries. Any one who is conversant with the private courts of California knows she has struck the "bad-rock" of sorrow. In the four States where women have full suffrage—Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Idaho—they hold their share of the offices; they are in both branches of the Legislature, serve on both grand and petit juries and were delegates to both National Conventions in 1900, and it is generally conceded that the laws have been much improved. I challenge the forty-one States to show cause why their women should not have the ballot. Our form of government is supposed to emanate from the people, and whatever control it possesses over the people is supposed to be exercised by and with their consent. I and others of my sex find ourselves controlled by a form of government in the inauguration of which we have had no voice, and in whose administration we are denied the right to participate, though we are a large part of the people of this country. And were it true that a majority of supporting girls without any of the reforms that now prevail in such glibly lauding houses as are maintained by the Young Women's Christian Temperance Union and similar organizations.

thinking women of this country are beginning to understand it.

WILL IT SUCCEED.

A hotel for women only, a big building with 200 sleeping rooms, concert rooms and, best of all, a court of law, where young women can receive their sweethearts without being intruded upon by spying landladies, will be opened in Boston next month, says an exchange, and it will be different from anything of the kind now in existence.

This hotel has already begun to awaken the curiosity of the working girls of Boston, and its projectors think it will be a great success. It will not be a charitable institution, but a home for self-supporting girls without any of the reforms that now prevail in such glibly lauding houses as are maintained by the Young Women's Christian Temperance Union and similar organizations.

HER NAME WAS READ.

One of the inexpressible things in these days of all kinds of organization is the love of publicity that so many people possess. It is not confined to sex, creed or locality, but it is doubtful if many an aspirant after such notoriety ever went further out of the ordinary, just to have her name read in "meeting assembled," than did a woman of a prominent organization in New York not long since. She was unable to attend the meeting, but as the roll is never called, her presence, like those others in the "Albano," would never have been missed. "Had she not sent this little note, with a request that the presiding officer read it: 'Mrs. Blank, on account of illness, is unable to attend today's meeting, but she sends greetings.'"

AN ART WORKER.

Mrs. Clara L. Kellogg has raised modern embroidery to an art. She furnishes entire houses in embroidered textiles, producing harmonious effects throughout. She travels abroad every year, studying embroidery and design. All her designs are original and are founded upon suggestions received from old paintings, mosaics, furniture, anything, in fact, which may offer a suggestion to her alert mind and ready fingers. She starts each piece of work, selecting the colors and shades to be employed, and then sends it out to some chosen worker to complete. By this means she gives employment to a large force of workers scattered all over the country.

NEIGHBORHOOD HOUSE

AND MRS. HEARST.

"Neighborhood House," in the city of Washington, D. C., owes much of its success to the generosity of Mrs. Fannie A. Hearst. In this house, which is really a settlement, lives Charles F. Weller, who is secretary of the Associated Charities, and his wife and mother, who look after the interests of those desiring to enjoy the pleasures of their home.

In "Neighborhood House" is maintained, with Mrs. Hearst as fairly good mother, a free kindergarten for the children of this locality. This is kept open when they are brought together under such conditions.

SHORT NOTES.

Mrs. Lydia C. Sharples of Philadelphia has invented a bread making machine which she claims will produce a superior quality of bread by a new and simple process. Believing that the kneading of flour is not desirable, this process is done away with by the machine.

The champion golf ball thrower of Elmira College is Miss Bertha Barrett, who has established a record for college girl athletes. She has accomplished the feat of throwing a baseball 131 feet and 20 inches.

It is said of George Eliot's literary style that its most marked characteristic is its sympathy. And long before her identity had become known, Charles Dickens, a singularly acute critic of his own art, detected her sex by an undercurrent of womanly sympathy. He had observed that on putting the book aside he said: "We are so near to the end of the world, but I should say, despite the name, that 'George Eliot' is a woman."

Some Poetic Thoughts for Women Readers

WHAT'S LOVE.

"What's love? Pray tell me, little maid,"
"I'm much too young to know," she said.

I asked the bride, while 'neath its spell
She said 'twas joy no tongue could tell.
After ten years—she did not know;
Forgot—it was so long ago.

So no fair answer did I get.
What's love? I'm undecided yet.
—Exchange.

RESIDUUM.

"I have no memory of what you said.
The hour you came and told me of my doom—
But this I know, that in the quiet room
The buzzing of a bee poised on the red
Rose vine outside seemed louder than the tread
Of multitudes: within the twilight's gloom
I saw strange traceries of leaf and bloom
Against the window, and a silken thread
Clung moist about my hand and mind—
To gather up the skeins and put away
My broodery till another day
Should dawn—as different as worlds must be!
Ah, why should I these trifling things recall,

Yet not one slightest word your lips
Made the sun of the morning in splendour arise!"
—Charlotte Becker.

TILL YOU COME BACK AGAIN.

Love of my heart, O, love of my heart,
Where do you bide tonight?
My brain is wild as the winds that start

With the thoughts of you to-night,
Cold drifts the rain o'er the street and smart.
And never a star is seen;
Cold is the night, and cold is my heart
For the miles and miles between.

Love of my heart, O, love of my heart,
Fly back to my arms, I pray,
I wander through street, and wander through mart
And then to my bed and pray,
But my brain is wild as the winds that start.

And sad as the drifting rain,
And I must wander, love of my heart,
Till you come back again.
—W. E. Williams.

AFTER THE STORMS.

For the storms that have driven the blue from the skies
Give the soft of thy tresses—the gray of thine eyes
And songs shall be sweet where the heart knew but sighs
In a beautiful, beautiful morning!

Thy tresses were midnight; but ever thine eyes

Made the sun of the morning in splendour arise
In the varying blue and the gray of the skies
In a beautiful, beautiful morning!
—Frank L. Stanton.

TILL ETHEL CAME.

Till Ethel came I thought the ball
Extremely dull—the maidens all
Most plain—then men a dismal lot
Of bores—the rooms extremely hot.
I wondered why I danced this Fall.

Till Ethel came I thought the ball
Extremely dull—the maidens all
Most plain—then men a dismal lot
Of bores—the rooms extremely hot.
I wondered why I danced this Fall.

I thought the orchestra too small;
I felt the draft blow through the hall;
I swore I'd go—then swore I'd not—
Till Ethel came.

A wondrous change did then befall:
The music Strauss might well extol:
The surface suited to a dot;
Then stairs were cool when rooms were hot.

I think I'd not been feeling well
Till Ethel came!
—Life.

A VERY BUSY WOMAN.

She pronounced in sounding platitude
Her universal gratitude,
For men of every latitude,
From the tropics to the poles;
She felt a consanguinity.

A sisterly affinity.
A kind of kith-and-kinity.
For all these foreign souls.

For Caledonian Highlanders,
For brutal South Sea Islanders,
For Gentle Greek and Jew;
For Finns and for Siberians,
For Arabs and Algerians,
For Terra-del-Puglians.

She was in a constant stew.
Oh, it worried Miss Sophronia
Lest the men of Patagonia
Should die with the pneumonia,
With the phthisic or the chills.

Yet, indeed, she worried daily,
Lest a group of cold should waylay
Some poor Sophronia or Malay,
Dying for the lack of pills.

And she toiled on without measure,
And with most un stinted pleasure,
For the good of Central Asia
And the pagan people there.

But meanwhile her little sister
Died of a neglected blister,
But Sophronia hardly missed her,
For she had no time to spare.

A WOMAN'S ANSWERS.

What would you do for the man you like?
"For the man I like?" quoth she.
"If he had money I would marry him:
"Yes, marry him," quoth she.
"For position, and wealth, and a kindly man

"Would make life smooth," quoth
she.
And what would you do for the man you hate?
"For the man I hate?" quoth she.
"I'd make his life miserable; yes I would."
"Indeed I would," quoth she.
"For the man I'd hate would be a wretch."
"Even if he loved me."

But what would you do for the man you loved?
"For the man I loved?" quoth she.
"Oh, follow him far, to the ends of the earth."
"To the ends of the earth," quoth
she.
"And give up fortune, and friends, and life."
"For the man I loved," quoth she.
—Gertrude Titus.

MAN'S SERVICE.

(A stanza from a Treatise of Humane Learning.)
The chief use then in man of that he knows
Is his painstaking for the good of all;
Not fleshly weeping for our made woes,
Nor laughing from a melancholy gall,
Nor hating from a soul that overflows
With bitterness, breathed out from inward thrall,
But sweetly rather to ease, loose or bind.

So Mabel's engaged—
Does this mean a marriage?
My mind's not assuaged,
She's before been engaged,
And somewhat she's aged,
Though I'll not disparage.
Yes, Mabel's engaged—
Does this mean a marriage?

TO HAPPINESS.

It ain't so far to happiness—it's lyin'

all around;
It twinkles in the dewdrops, brings blossoms to barren ground.
It sings in all the breezes; it ripples in the hills;
It's written on the green banners that wave from all the hills.

OUTCASTS.

Thou hast not loved? Then all unknown
The sweetness of the rose unblown:
No pretty secret are hath told
To thee; the birds in lightest tone
N'er sung for thee, for thee alone;
No tender thoughts yon pale star
E'er brought to thee of one afar.

Thou hast not loved? Then lips of thine
Hath never known the cry divine:
Then heart of thine, with woe o'er-weighed,

THE LIGHTSHIP.

Alone upon the sea I stand,
Where the billows round me roll,
And lift a lantern in my hand
To mark the hidden shoal.

Whatever mood may rule the sky,
One solitary, constant star
Burns in the darkness here on high
To warn the ships afar.

Glad the farewell they take of me
Bound outward on the tide of foam;
And glad the welcome when they see
My light that leads them home!

FROM BOUDOIR TO BOULEVARD

ONE'S COSTUME TAKES TIME

When you see a radiantly lovely woman, beautifully groomed and with every hair and line of her frock carefully and artistically arranged, did it ever occur to you to wonder how long it required to frame the charming picture? Your guess would be far above the actual length of time, and it would astonish you if you should compare the number of minutes now consumed in the average grooming process with the hours at one time considered necessary in order to secure the same results.

And yet these fair creatures who have brought about such an immense saving of their own time, as well as that of others, are not receiving all the credit and praise due them for this admirable improvement.

As a matter of fact, the different stages of robing have been so well arranged and timed, so dovetailed as it were, that in a having been carried beyond the stage door, have set an excellent example to those inclined to dawdle.

The consequence is women have found it isn't absolutely necessary to spend such a lot of time in their dressing rooms, and the minutes, almost hours one might say, may be put to much better advantage.

Take a French woman, for example. She dresses herself as completely and deftly as any one, and though she, too, may have a maid the method of procedure is exactly the same.

As for the undergarments, few women wear theirs in the same fashion.

A stout person will endeavor to get as much under her stays as possible, and may in the end be rather uncomfortable in body on account of ridges and wrinkles, though her mind is happy in the knowledge that she pretty, while frowns is to be abhorred. Never less than 10 minutes should be devoted to the hair, for it is woman's greatest charm.

SHE WHO LOVES—SHE WHO IS LOVED.

With each curl and wave arranged, the next consideration is the face. A well-groomed woman no more thinks of neglecting to brush and shape her eyebrows than she would of forgetting to care for her teeth.

After these features are attended to, this systematic woman is ready to don the skirt of her frock. Never does she attempt the waist until after her hat is properly adjusted, and upon this latter adjunct she lavishes more time than it is generally supposed to require.

The effect must be carefully studied from

One woman loves, the other is loved; One woman gives, the other receives; One offers humbly a life's devotion; The other lives at a man's emotion; One heavily treads a thorny way; The other in paths of ease may stray; One wakes while the other sleeps; One laughs while the other weeps; One lives for her love and nothing else, The other—

But why continue? The list is well-nigh endless, and, after all, this one differentiation includes and explains all the others.

knocks recently and bows her head in worship for a long time.

Meanwhile the man concludes that the pedestal is less conducive to his enjoyment than a "cosy corner," and when the woman looks up it is to find that her idol has utilized his clay feet to such good purpose that the pedestal is empty.

This type of woman is very rare, however, and the ordinary woman loves only at intervals. In a more earthly way.

When a woman loves a man violently and wants to poison or physically damage every other woman he speaks of or to, it is because she has a demon of jealousy within her that inspires all kinds of absurd outbreaks. She will accuse him of infidelity, she will never dream of it; he suspects of his every thought, and him to desperation, and, wasting his time and monopolizing his society, she will torment him from innocence into artifice and from artifice into revolt.

Man loves bodily comfort and mental security above everything else, and when a woman deprives him of them he will run away the first time she isn't looking and forget to come back.

On the other hand, the love of a "patient Griselda" will bore him insufferably, and for diversion he will seek off after some woman less saintly and servile. When a woman's devotion to a man is so self-effacing that she glories in blacking his boots she need not be surprised if he regards her simply as his bootblack. He may accept her services, but he will never give her his love.

The spirit that prompts such adoring service is of the kind possessed by heroes and martyrs; it is of the kind that, centuries ago, made woman famous in the world's history; but, in this twentieth century, man ignores the fact that "the purer the gold the softer it is," and will not recognize the real worth of a so-called "soft" woman.

Likewise, being self-sacrificing, she may deny herself a pair of shoes to get him a scarfpin he has admired, and will feel amply repaid if he grants an approval and condescends to wear it, but some day he will tell her she was a fool for not getting the shoes instead.

This is the woman whose love is "suppressed in adversity"; but there is no present demand for it.

All of which goes to show that neither the adoring saint, nor the jealous despot, nor the unselfish slave, is the type of woman that a man loves.

The more stupid a woman is the more will men laugh. The more avaricious she is, the more they will bestow upon her. The more she despises them the more they adore her. The more she insults them the more they sue for her favor. The more haughty she is the more humble are they. The more she abuses them the more they cringe.

It is the woman who demands much and gives little whom men love to distraction. They will cast loyal love, honor, wealth and undiminished name into her lap, and a supercilious smile of acknowledgment makes them happy. Lack of understanding or appreciation on her part but makes them the more eager to impoverish themselves to enrich her.

Trousseau For Ten Dollars

neighbors, a "pore white" girl of Pokeberry Hollow, was "gwine ter git married," and had sent her a ten dollar note and a request for a trousseau.

The trousseau was to include a wedding dress of white silk, a hat trimmed with roses, a Sunday-go-to-meetin' dress, a winter dress, a pair of shoes, a "parrysol," three pairs of stockings, a dozen handkerchiefs, an embroidered bureau cover and a hand painted toilet bath set, "an' Miss Mamie, ef yo' hev anny lef' over, I'd lak' mightily to hev' a pair of white kid gloves, number seven en' a half."

ten dollar note. "I wonder if she thinks I am a sleight of hand performer and can stroke a large, fat, white rabbit out of a teacup, or have only to break an egg to evolve a gold watch and chain."

But this was only for a moment. A mental image of the store at Pokeberry Hollow arose before her and of the limitless resources of $10 as regarded by Pokeberry folk, and she went to work.

The big department stores were not for her—not even the cheapest. No; Grand street it must be, and probably the sidewalk at that. Soon the spirit of the chase had taken possession of her, and the po-

Some of the things came out of barrows, and the embroidered bureau cover and set were of a hideousness quite unapproachable. "But it will probably strike the taste of Pokeberry Hollow," she considered herself. Her chief triumph, however, she considered the orange blossoms, gotten all unauthorized by her practice of a severe economy, "for who ever heard of a bride without orange blossoms?"

The result was rapturous applause, as understood by Pokeberry Hollow. And "Miss Mamie" felt repaid.

surprisingly few minutes the fetching negligee may be shed and elaborate street raincoat assumed.

Due in part to the limited time allowed the woman of fashion for keeping her many social engagements, it has become necessary for her to manage the artistic touches to her plumage in a few minutes as possible.

Where a few years ago it was quite the ordinary thing to spend two hours or more in dressing, one hour, or even less, is now considered a vast amount in which to accomplish the same results.

No woman is to be censured for worthy efforts devoted to personal beautifying, but at the same time it's rather foolish and vain of her to unnecessarily prolong the operation.

Did you ever consider how quickly some of the women of the stage remove the badge of their profession and emerge from their tiny heaped up dressing rooms as spick and span, well groomed and lovely to look upon, as though they had really given hours to the arrangement of hair and frock?

After all, dressing is an art, and they seem to have learned it along with their early lessons in making up.

Rapid Robing and Disrobing.

Many actresses are social favorites, and their rapid methods of robing and disrobing, has made her hips at least two inches smaller by this device.

Of course, the silken singlet is drawn on first, or where this is dispensed with a sheer chemise may be assumed.

Smoothly Around the Waist.

Then the pretty little drawers are brought up smoothly around the waist and tied so that there are no hard knots to press against the flesh.

Short petticoats have lost their charm for the feminine heart since dainty little ruffled chemises have become fashionable, so she does not need to bother herself with them.

To put on her stockings and shoes requires only a few minutes, and then she is ready for the stage. These, of course, are let out as far as possible, for no woman thinks of putting them on without adjusting them each time.

In a twinkling the ribbon hose supporters are snapped into place, a long loose negligee is donned, and then milady is ready for the artistic touches that make or mar her appearance.

This is where time is needed and is spent with satisfactory results, but by no means should the coflure proclaim the minutes taken in the accomplishment. Carelessness and an unstudied effect, if becoming, is all points, and not until each long pin is thrust in securely and comfortably can the robing process continue.

The waist follows, and a great deal of attention is given to the details of collar and belt.

It is curious, but a fact, nevertheless, that no woman before leaving her pretty reflection in the long mirror neglects that little

"The woman with a heart says without thinking, 'All for you!' The woman with a head thinks without saying, 'All for me!'"

When a woman is in love she is temporarily insane and, according to her temperament, behaves either like an idolater, a fiend or an angel.

parting dab at her nose with her powder puff.

It's as much a sign of approval as anything else, but the ruling passion is strong in the death of youth which the dowager enjoys.

This fact was strongly shown by DuBarry, who insisted upon carrying her powder puff with her and dabbing her nose as she made her sad journey to the guillotine.

always with the same ideal, but represented by different men. Love, spiritual and in the abstract, is her whole existence. She endows some very ordinary man with all the godlike attributes she can think of, places him on a pedestal and makes him her idol. She knows the feet are clay, and will remain clay till the end of time, but she drapes them artistically and forgets that clay abounds. She yielded so signally a crop of ready money of late that something had to be done. There were the three little sisters growing up and the widowed mother. It was plain that she must be the "mum of the family." So she had sent out a flight of cards announcing that Miss Mary Queensbury Brockenbrough would shop on commission in New York, and would especially be of service to intending brides.

And now her first order had come; but it was something of a staggerer. One of their
